XIII WORLD CONGRESS OF SOCIOLOGY

July 18-23, 1994, Bielefeld, Germany

Organizational Structure

The organization of the XIII World Congress of Sociology is carried out by the International Sociological Association (ISA), in collaboration with the German Society of Sociology, and the Gesellschaft für Internationale Soziologie (GIS).

ISA is responsible for the organization of the academic program of the Congress, for its administrative meetings and for pre-registration. GIS is concerned with all local arrangements and Congress registration on the spot. Tourist Bureau Bielefeld was appointed an official congress travel and hotel booking agency, and Lufthansa an official airline carrier.

Congress Venue

XIII World Congress of Sociology will be held at the University of Bielefeld in Germany, on July 18th through 23rd, 1994.

Registration

The Congress Registration Form is included with this issue of the ISA Bulletin. Additional copies are available from the ISA Secretariat or may be made by photocopy.

As far as congress fees are concerned, it should be clarified that ISA members are those who have paid their individual membership dues to the ISA for the current year. All others are "non-members".

Registration of all participants will take place at the Congress venue from July 16th through July 23rd, 1994, from 8 a.m. till 10 p.m.

Participant are urged to register at the Congress venue first and afterwards to proceed to their accommodation by bus. A regular shuttle bus between the Congress venue and the hotels will be offered free of charge to all participants.

Accommodation

The Tourist Bureau of Bielefeld will provide suitable accommodation in Bielefeld and nearby towns of the region according to your preferences, provided you make your reservation before March 31, 1994.

For details on room categories and prices, see enclosed Reservation Form.

Book Exhibition

The Book Exhibition will be organized at the Congress venue.

All inquiries should be addressed to Dr Hans-Jürgen Franz, GIS, University of Bielefeld, Postfach 100 131, 4800 Bielefeld, Germany, fax (49-521) 106 2988.

Reproduction and Sale of Papers

Congress Papers & Sale Center will be organized by GIS at the Congress venue and papers will be duplicated on request at a modest price.

Congress Program Committee

The Program Committee for the XIII World Congress of Sociology is composed of the Chairman: Neil Smelser (University of California, Berkeley, USA), and the Members: Neuma Aguiar (IUPERJ, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil), Rudolf Andorka (University of Economic Sciences, Budapest, Hungary), Daniel Bertaux (CEMS, CNRS, Paris, France), Olayiwola Erinosh (Ogun State University, Ago-Iwoye, Nigeria), Felix Geyer (SISWO, Amsterdam, The Netherlands), Alberto Martinelli (Università degli Studi Milano, Italy), Fatima Mernissi (Rabat, Morocco), T.K. Oommen (Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, India), Ayse Oncu (Bogaziçi University, Istanbul, Turkey), Alejandro Portes (Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, USA), *Stella R. ## CONTESTED BOUNDARIES AND SHIFTING SOLIDARITIES by Neil Smelser, ISA Vice-President, Chair of the Program Committee

The theme for the XIII World Congress of Sociology to be held in Bielefeld in July 1994, is Contested Boundaries and Shifting Solidarities. The title is meant to encapsulate the vast sea of uncertainty and change that has engulfed the world in the last decade of the twentieth century and has affected virtually all of its societies.

A convenient starting-point for the depicting the world situation is to consider the status of the nation-state. Once commonly supposed to be the natural and sovereign focus of the loyalty and solidarity of its citizens, this idea of the state has recently been challenged with respect to all of these constituent elements. The international boundaries of the state have become permeable through the greater globalization of production, trade, finance, and culture, with a resultant loss of control of all states over their own fortunes. The sovereignty of states has been further compromised through shifting patterns of regional political federations and alliances. At the sub-national level, the state has found itself challenged by the efflorescence and revitalization of solidary groupings with multiple bases—regional, linguistic, religious, ethnic, gender, and life-style—as well as a bewildering array of novel social movements that generate their own solidarities. All of these compete with the state for the loyalties of peoples and sometimes for jurisdiction over territory. In a word, the contemporary state has been pressured from both above and below by contested boundaries and shifting solidarities.

The six themes of the conference take up different facets of the many-faceted general theme. Symposium 1 (see below for the Symposia program) deals with the mutual interdependence of global and local forces—migration, urbanization, cosmopolitanism, traditionalism—in the current world scene. Session 2 takes the historical link between the development of market economics and democratic states and explores the ways in which this relationship has become problematic in the light of contemporary development in East and West, North and South. Symposia III and IV focus on different aspects of the situation. The first deals with old and new bases of solidarity and identity—specifically, ethnicity, nationality, religion, and gender—all of which cross class divisions which persist but which have receded and changed in form as societies have evolved from earlier phases of industrial development. Session 4 concentrates on the political manifestations of these shifting bases of sub-national solidarities and conflicts, raising questions about the new bases of citizenship and rights, political participation, and the contemporary significance of class-based and other social movements.

Finally, Sessions 5 and 6 also deal with boundaries, but in different, special senses. Sub-boundaries (organism-environment, humanity-nature) have been blurred and in many cases menaced by the forces of technology, production, consumption, life-style, and inequality. The focus of Session 6 is on the boundaries of sociological knowledge itself. Its theme is on salient contemporary challenges to sociological thinking, emanating from such diverse sources as new epistemological formulations (for example, the radical relativism of postmodernism), feminist theory, developments in other academic disciplines and, not least, the changing character of the social world itself, which makes constant demands for alterations of basic sociological units of analysis, frameworks, and theories.

SYMPOSIA

Note: Only invited papers will be presented at the Symposia sessions

SYMPOSIUM I THE GLOBAL AND THE LOCAL

The Sessions of this Symposium bring together four diverse themes loosely grouped around a focus on how social and economic processes at the world level impinge on the daily lives of individuals and households and how the adaptations that they make to broader structural forces can, in turn, transform communities and cultures.

The mechanisms through which people respond to the challenges of a globalized economy and polity are of increasing interest to sociologists during this fin de siècle which will also usher the third millennium of the Christian era. From cultural trends that mirror the frenetic pace of technological innovation to massive human flows seeking to meet, through physical displacement, the living standards imposed by the industrialized world, contemporary society is continuously jolted and forced to adapt to novel conditions. The struggle to maintain a minimum of sociability, stability, and order in the midst of multiple unexpected events and conflicting demands is enacted by both individuals and local communities. Presenters in the four sessions will examine and comment on the various facets of this common process.

SYMPOSIUM III NEW AND OLD BASES OF SOLIDARITY AND IDENTITY

During the process of industrialization forms of cooperation and solidarity emerged among the working class, which presented its demands for social redistribution. This laid the ground for nation-states to implement welfare policies and originated forms of interest representation by corporate groups. With the foundation of sociology as a discipline, the analysis of the emerging forms of solidarity in comparison with old forms based on magic, religion and kinship became a key issue.

The continuing transformation of the labor process, as well as large-scale migration to urban areas, have revealed industries declining capacity to steadily incorporate broad social groups. Corporate and trade-union ties based on occupational grouping have ceased to provide an effective strategy when it comes to making social demands and these have escaped the boundaries of the production paradigm.

Groups left out of these systems of representation have begun to build new social movements to express their discontent. In many countries the crisis of the welfare estate has marginalized ethnic and gender groups and thus paved the way for new forms of expressing social demands, based on these groups' social exclusion and their cultural characteristics.

In other instances, the paralysis of nation-states vis-à-vis social demands has spurred entrepreneurial groups based on ethnicity, language, religion and other cultural insignia to pursue new national allegiances and to curtail new demands for social distribution.

As political representation in nation-states has also been based on gender and has tended to reinforce gender hierarchies, social movements began to question the boundaries that excluded their demands from public concern. Criticisms have been voiced as to policies that reinforce women's economic dependence on men; threats of violence against women (including those of a sexual nature); the greater social risks faced by women due to the social organization of biological reproduction; and the forms of access to power and decision making within nation-states.

Religion and church groups have traditionally played a crucial role in moments of crisis. Religious allegiances have been formed as a source of social and psychic support, and different forms of asceticism have arisen as a way of coping with social distress. The emergence of nation-states provided secular support for the crisis situation. With the crisis of the welfare state, social movements, in their quest to widen political influence, sometimes confront religious groups. Religious asceticism contrasts with attempts by gender-based social movements to weaken social control over reproduction. Alternatively, religious groups sometimes build alliances with excluded gender- and ethnic-based groups, endeavoring to redefine religious symbols in order to channel social demands.

Symposium III will deal with the efforts of these conflicting forces to build new bases of solidarity and identity. Conflicts sometimes result in segmentation and factionalism, while other times they result in new forms of pluralism and democratic organization.

SYMPOSIUM IV THE POLITY AND THE DYNAMICS OF CIVIL SOCIETY

The nation-state is at the core of the changes and uncertainties that give the title to our Congress. Indeed, among the boundaries that are being most contested in our time are those of state action. The demarcations between the public and the private realm, between state and civil society, among different forms of power and among different forms of politics are all in question today. On the other hand, loyalty to the nation-state, as a privileged, universalistic and abstract solidarity inherent to the political obligation that grounds the modern state, has been challenged in recent times by the emergence or reemergence of new and old competing solidarities. These solidarities are particularistic rather than universalistic, and contextual rather than abstract; whether infra-state or supra-state in their scope, they rarely coincide with the territorial boundaries of the state, and question more or less radically some of the sovereign prerogatives of the state up until now considered as a given of political interaction.

As a result, the conventional conception of politics, of political action and of political organization are undergoing profound revision. More than ever politics seems to reach far beyond the state realms (such as the private domain, everyday life, life styles and self-identity) previously considered nonpolitical. However, this enhanced politicization of social life seems to coexist with apparently contradictory trends toward an increasing distance, apathy and alienation of citizens vis-à-vis the established political process. This contradiction is perhaps related to another trend: as the old forms of political action and organization are being eroded they are being complemented (if not fully superseded) by new political actors and actions resorting to new ideological platforms and organization patterns whereby political mobilization acquires a new meaning and a new strength.

The impact of this sea of changes on political values such as democracy, citizenship and rights are uncertain and will probably remain so in the years to come. Be it as it may, the contestation of boundaries and the shifting of solidarities is already contributing to unveiling the multicultural plurality behind seemingly homogeneous political conceptions. Alternative models of democracy as well as alternative models of citizenship and of rights and struggles for rights will certainly be at the center of our discussions in the Congress and beyond.

SYMPOSIUM V THE ENVIRONMENT, TECHNOLOGY, AND POWER

Within the context of the coming World Congress of Sociology and its general theme Contested Boundaries and Shifting Solidarities the Symposium V has a special significance. The recent Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro has brought to the fore again the vulnerability of our planet. Since the sixties ecological awareness has developed in many strata of our lives. Worldwide attention was raised by the first Club of Rome report on the Limits to Growth, the report to the President of the United States Global 2000, the first world environment conference in Stockholm, all in 1972. A number of huge conferences, research programmes and institutions on pollution, the climate, Global Change, the Geosphere and Biosphere, Man and the Biosphere have been created and launched. The United Nations created in Nairobi some ten years ago the secretariat of the United Nations Environmental Programme. But the several dozen of people located there are practically helpless in face of the challenges and the vested interests in the economy and politics.

In all these programmes the social sciences did only play a marginal role until recently. It was only in 1990 that the International Sociological Association instituted a Thematic Group on Environment & Society. The International Social Science Council decided only in 1990 as well on its programme Human Dimensions of Global Environmental Change as a complement to the other international programmes which are largely dominated by natural and technical sciences.

Most national sociological associations do not have yet own research committees in this field. Certainly it is true that within other research committees - like RC 24 of the ISA Social Ecology - and many social scientists as individuals were very active in this domain. It remains that the dominant understanding of environmental issues is a technocratic one, i.e. that the solution of environmental problems - which have been created by our technology and production - should be done with technological means. Apparently behind this understanding are vested political and economic interests. The role of social scientists is to uncover these interests and their functioning.

The United Nations Commission on Environment and Development under the chair of the Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundlandt has coined the term of "sustainable development" in its final report Our Common Future in 1987. How far does this concept solve the problems raised?

Twenty years after the publication of the first report by the Club of Rome, the main author Denis L. Meadows declared in a recent interview that the situation has worsened in the meantime, and that we need a real revolution in our heads to overcome the environmental problems created by us and to save the earth and our species. So it is not a surprise that the last report by the Club of Rome is titled The First Global Revolution.

The Symposium should take into account the power relationships between North and South, divergent economic and political interests within and between nations, and gender issues. The programme which has been decided by the Executive Committee of the International Sociological Association for symposium 5 comprises the following four sessions: Human Dimensions of Global Environmental Change; Population, Environment and Sustainable Livelihood; The Appropriation of Emerging Technology and Its Consequences; Production, Consumption, and Life Style.

These four domains seem to us to be in the core of the social approach to environmental issues. We will start with an analysis and presentation of recent efforts of social scientists to complement and criticize the international research in the natural sciences and technologies. The second session will focus on the population dynamics as some experts describe the so-called "population explosion" (what a terrible word!) as the main reason for the environmental crisis. One of the strategies discussed during the last couple of years was in the following of E.F. Schumacher's Small is Beautiful was an appropriate, intermediate, alternative technology. Who is deciding on technological issues? What is the role of the military? And finally we want to raise the issue of production, consumption, and life style as in our view work is still the central category for power relations in society and social inequality. Who decides what is where, how, how much, when, for whom produced in industry, services and administration is at the core also for the future or our environment, for democracy and a decent life.

International Sociological Association/ISA

CURRENT SOCIOLOGY

Association Internationale de Sociologie / La sociologie contemporaine

Each issue of this unique journal is devoted to a comprehensive trend report on a topic of interest to the international community of sociologists. Authors review current trends and tendencies in all areas of sociological work - theories, methods, concepts, substantive research and national or regional developments. The aim is to review new developments, to discuss controversies, and to provide extensive bibliographies. From time to time, «Commentaries on Trend Reports» are published in subsequent issues of the journal.

Since its inception in 1952, CURRENT SOCIOLOGY has published Trend Reports by some of the world's leading sociologists, such as S.M. Miller's classic on Comparative Social Mobility (1960). More recently, the journal has covered topics of growing importance with the discipline such as the sociology of law, the sociology of the body, economic sociology and the sociology of legitimation.

Issues are published in French or English, but a text in one language is always accompanied by an extensive résumé in the other. CURRENT SOCIOLOGY is an official journal of the International Sociological Association. Its main aim is to review international developments in the discipline and to provide a forum which professional sociologists from all countries can communicate with the widest group of colleagues.

Guidelines for Contributors

1. Contributions may be submitted in any language, but will be published only in English.
Contributions in English may be sent to the Editor or Associate Editors, in other languages to the appropriate editor, as indicated above. Where there is no indication of editorial coverage of a language, advice should be sought from the Editor. Papers are refereed by an international panel whose names appear in the fourth issue of each year.

2. Contributions are considered for publication only on the understanding that they are not simultaneously under consideration elsewhere in English, that they are the original work of the author(s), and that any previous form of publication is disclosed.
Copyright is retained by the author, but the Journal is licensed to reprint.

3. Standard length of papers is 6000 words, but shorter contributions are also welcomed.
They should be typed, double spaced on one side of paper with margins of 3 cm.

4. Title, author's name, full address and brief biographical note should be typed on a separate sheet.

5. An abstract of 100-200 words should also be typed on a separate sheet.

SUBSCRIPTIONS: Members of the ISA will receive the journal

SAGE Studies in International Sociology

sponsored by the International Sociological Association/ISA

This Series was established by the ISA in 1974 in place of the transactions of World Congress of Sociology, which had been published since the Association's foundation in 1949.

The series contains topical volumes based on work presented in the various sessions of World Congresses and reflecting the scientific activities of the ISA's Research Committees.

The books contain a selection of papers chosen for their scientific quality, their international representativeness and their relevance to the various debates currently taking place in the discipline.

sociological abstracts

Editor: Leo P. Chall

Co-sponsored by the ISA, Sociological Abstracts is published by Sociological Abstracts Inc., a non-profit corporation. It also publishes «Linguistics and Languages Behavior Abstracts and Social Planning/Policy and Development Abstracts». SA appears 5 times a year: April, June, August, October, December.

Sociological Abstracts offers a collection of nonevaluative abstracts which reflects the world's serial literature in sociology and related disciplines. Each of the five issues of SA contains the following: a brief user's guide; a Table of Contents consisting of 33 major and 79 subcategories into which sociological subjects are categorized; a subject index; an author index; a source index; a supplement «International Review of Publications in Sociology» - consisting of a bibliography of books reviews taken from the journals abstracted in the same issue; some issues also contain Supplement(s) consisting of abstracts of congress papers.

Selection and coverage: three types of journals have been distinguished in the following order or priority:

Type 1 - journals published by sociological associations, groups, faculties and institutes; and periodicals containing the word «sociology» in their title. These are abstracted fully, irrespective of language publication.

Type 2 - journals from such related areas as anthropology, economics, education, medicine, community development, philosophy, statistics, political science, etc. Such journals are abstracted selectively.

Type 3 - journals from the humanities and journals of general circulation wherein scholars and laymen publish discussions or criticism of sociology and sociological topics. These journals are abstracted selectively.

SA desires to receive an abstract together with a reprint of the document itself (article, monograph, essay, book). Publishers and editors are urged to send copies of new publications for abstracting, or to initiate the preparation of abstracts on forms supplied gratis on request.

Other services and publications available:

- Information entered into the database since 1963 is available online to information professionals from BRS (file label SOCA), Data-Star (file label SOCA), and Dialog (file 37)

- Sociosearch - a service offering researchers and librarians an opportunity to consult with information specialists who answer research questions with fast comprehensive searches of SA related databases;

- Social Planning/Policy, and Development Abstracts (SOPODA) - published since 1979 as a response to the expressed needs of scholars and educators, for a compression of the applied sociology and social science literature into an easily accessible format;

- Note Us - a free newsletter to facilitate communication between the producers of SA and its several thousands of users;

- A slide/tape show Sociological Abstracts - in Print and Online offering information and instruction on use of this comprehensive sociological database. The presentation is available for purchase ($70) or it can be borrowed for a two-week period, at no charge.

- A manual - a free brochure - Your Guide to Searching Sociological Abstracts using a Personal Computer.

- The now completed first edition of the SA Thesaurus of Sociological Terms is being used to index all SA and SOPODA records; Dialog information Services will mount the online thesaurus;

Subscription to SA is $ 325 per year. Single issues are $ 50. Orders and enquiries can be placed with:

SECOND WORLDWIDE COMPETITION FOR YOUNG SOCIOLOGISTS

The Second ISA Worldwide competition for Young Sociologists is well under way, and already quite a number of papers have been submitted to the Tampere Secretariat. However, because of unforeseen difficulties in getting some of the regional juries organized, in order to ensure that potential contributors from all regions of the world shall have an equal chance of participating the deadline for submitting papers is extended by one month. This means that papers should reach the Tampere Secretariat at the latest by May 31, 1993.

O N SOCIOLOGY IN JAPAN AND JAPANESE SOCIOLOGICAL SOCIETY

by Joji Watanuki, President

If we take the year 1893 - the year that the first chair of full professorship of sociology was created and occupied by a Japanese scholar at the Tokyo Imperial University - as our starting point, sociology in Japan has a hundred year tradition. In the 1920's, during the decade known as Taisho democracy, when maximum democratization was achieved under the Meiji Constitution Regime, empirically oriented sociology started to develop in Japan and the Japan Sociological Society was established in 1923. The Japan Sociological Society and also Japanese sociology as a whole somehow survived the militaristic and authoritarian period of the 1930's and the subsequent war, and started to develop rapidly in the post-World War II period. Democratization, economic growth with its positive and negative consequences, expansion of higher education, and stimulus from abroad, including that brought about by activities of the International Sociological Association - all those conditions favored the development of sociology in Japan.

The Japan Sociological Society has grown into the general professional association of Japanese sociologists. Its membership is 2,434 (as of October 3, 1992); and its annual meeting, which is usually held in October, attracts nearly 1,000 participants. The research activities of Japanese sociologists can be measured by such figures as the number of publications in books and articles by sociologists. According to a bibliography compiled by the Japan Sociological Society and published in Shakaigaku Hyoron (Japanese Sociological Review), No. 178, September 1992, 127 books and about 1,200 articles were published by Japanese sociologists during the year 1991.

Because of the successful indigenization of higher education and research activities in Japan, most of those publications are written in Japanese, which makes it difficult for them to be circulated internationally. However, what is desirable for Japanese sociology is a balance between indigenization and internationalization. In the direction of internationalization, we have been making various efforts, such as organizing international conferences, and publishing Bibliography of Japanese Sociological Literature in Western Languages (published in 1982, 1986, 1990). Moreover, we just started (October 1992) to publish in English, International Journal of Japanese Sociology. Subsequent issues will be published annually in October every year. The new journal will help familiarize international scholars with some of the meaningful contributions of Japanese sociologists, and hopefully encourage them to undertake further cross-national collaboration and exchange.

CALL FOR PAPERS AND PARTICIPATION

Competition on Gender Hierarchies and Social Transformation

ISA Research Committee 32 on Women in Society is organizing a world competition to stimulate the formulation of comparative studies on the changing position of women throughout the developing world. Papers are invited that elaborate a conceptual framework dealing with the effects of social movements at bringing about change in the cultural, religious, ethnic and national political spheres and in women's lives. They should highlight the conditions under which women move from a position of dependency to a position of autonomy within households.

They should focus specifically on the changing ways of dealing with sexuality and reproduction while providing bridges between such level of analysis and the changing nature of national governments to accommodate women's demands on these dimensions. You may wish to place the essay within the context of global restructuring.

Another purpose of the competition is to stimulate the participation of researchers from developing countries, particularly those from remote regions as well as those who have had little opportunity to engage in world meetings. Consequently this competition is open to scholars and researchers from "the South" and from Eastern Europe. Participation of both early and mid-career scholars is encouraged.

An International Jury will be established by RC 32. Because of the financial and resource constraints of this project, the competition will not consider papers that have more than 6,000 words or about 20 pages of text, plus 10 pages maximum of references and footnotes. Papers must be typed in standard pitch and be double spaced. Given the communication needs of this project and the lack of translation resources, papers must be submitted in English. A capacity for verbal communication in that language is also desirable. Since papers will be judged anonymously, your name, address, phone, fax numbers, (if relevant) and the paper's title should be submitted on a separate page. The paper's title but not your name should be at the top of the paper.

Papers will be evaluated on the basis of: their use of sociology to work out gender questions; their conceptual innovation; their way of developing the arguments; the possibility of the use in a comparative international framework; and their potential to be operationalized for use in a future comparative research project. Papers that are not on the topic as outlined in paragraph one will not be considered.

Results will be announced by the end of 1993. The sociologists whose papers are chosen will be invited to present their papers in Bielefeld, Germany, at the World Congress of Sociology, 18-23 July, 1994. Although funding cannot be promised, RC 32 will provide support to help the winners find resources to attend this meeting. It is anticipated that winners will also participate in a pre-conference seminar before the ISA Congress that will work on the planning of a comparative research project.

Papers should be sent by air and postmarked by April 15, 1993, to: International Competition on Gender and Development, c/o Instituto Universitario de Pesquisas do Rio de Janeiro (IUPERJ), Rua da Matriz 82, 22260 Rio de Janeiro P RJ, Brazil.

Graduate School for Social Research

The Graduate School for Social Research at the Institute of Philosophy and Sociology, Polish Academy of Sciences, in Warsaw, Poland, was established in the spring of 1992 by a group of scholars - philosophers, sociologists, historians, jurists, economists, psychologists, and political scientists - employed in various institutes of the Polish Academy of Sciences and colleges.

The Graduate School for Social Research will train doctoral students in the social sciences and humanities with special emphasis on the contemporary social, economic political and cultural problems of the countries of Central and Eastern Europe.

The Graduate School for Social Research has no intention of replacing the existing doctoral studies, but it does wish to offer - in addition to them - another, more effective and more interdisciplinary approach. In this system the student will be required to take a specific number of course hours and earn credits for them. He will be able to choose his scientific supervisor and the courses offered by the School.

The School will also try to involve its students and teachers in international exchange programmes and educational cooperation and research.

Journal of the Gypsy Lore Society

The Journal of the Gypsy Lore Society has resumed publications and welcomes articles in all branches of sociology dealing with the cultures of groups traditionally known as Gypsies as well as traveler or peripatetic groups. These groups include, among others, those referring to themselves as Ludar, Rom, Roma, Romnichels, Sinti, and Travellers. The Journal publishes articles in anthropology, art, folklore and folklife, history, linguistics, literature, music, political science, and sociology, as well as reviews of books and audiovisual materials, notes, and annotated texts.'

The Journal appears twice a year and is edited and published under the sponsorship of the Gypsy Lore Society.

Founded in 1888, the Journal of the Gypsy Lore Society published in four series up to 1982.

Inquiries and manuscripts should be sent to the editor, Sheila Salo, 5607 Greenleaf Road, Cheverly, MD 20785, USA.
