CURRENT SOCIOLOGY

Association Internationale de Sociologie / La sociologie contemporaine

Each issue of this unique journal is devoted to a comprehensive 'Trend Report' on a topic of interest to the international community of sociologists. Authors review current trends and tendencies in all areas of sociological work - theories, methods, concepts, substantive research and national or regional developments. The aim is to review new developments, to discuss controversies, and to provide extensive bibliographies. From time to time, "Commentaries on Trend Reports" are published in subsequent issues of the journal. Recent reports have focused on industrial and post-industrial sociology, the sociology of humour, agrarian relations and modes of production in the Middle East, sex roles, and inequalities of class and sex.

Issues are published in French or English, but a text in one language is always accompanied by an extensive résumé in the other. CURRENT SOCIOLOGY is an official journal of the International Sociological Association. Its main aim is to review international developments in the discipline and to provide a forum from which professional sociologists from all countries can communicate with the widest group of colleagues.

SOCIOLOGIE CONTEMPORAINE est une revue unique en son genre. Chaque numéro est consacré exclusivement à la présentation d'un rapport-synthèse sur la recherche dans un champ ou sur un thème sociologique en particulier. Ces rapports-synthèse sont conçus de manière à ce que chaque numéro de la Revue puisse être intéressant pour des sociologues travaillant à l'intérieur d'un large éventail de champs spécialisés puisqu'ils mettent l'accent sur les concepts, les théories, les problèmes et les méthodes. Ces rapports-synthèse fournissent une vue d'ensemble en discutant des recherches les plus importantes réalisées sur le thème choisi à travers le monde, et en présentant une bibliographie sélective des travaux des principaux auteurs sur la scène internationale. Tout en synthétisant les contenus et en contribuant à la clarification conceptuelle, ces rapports se veulent un forum où des démarches méthodologiques et théoriques peuvent être évaluées et des nouvelles orientations signalées. En tant que publication officielle de l'ISA, le but principal de la revue LA SOCIOLOGIE CONTEMPORAINE est de rendre compte des développements internationaux de la discipline et d'encourager les sociologues de métier de tous les pays à entrer en contact et à communiquer avec le plus grand nombre possible de collègues.

Editor: Leo P. Chall

Co-sponsored by the ISA, SOCIOLOGICAL ABSTRACTS is published by Sociological Abstracts Inc., a non-profit corporation. It also publishes LINGUISTICS AND LANGUAGE BEHAVIOR ABSTRACTS and SOCIAL PLANNING/POLICY AND DEVELOPMENT ABSTRACTS. SA appears 5 times a year: April, June, August, October, December. There is also a brief user's guide; a Table of Contents consisting of 33 major and 79 subcategories into which sociological subjects are categorized; a subject index; an author index; a source index; a supplement International Review of Publications in Sociology - consisting of a bibliography of books reviews taken from the journals abstracted in the same issue; some issues also contain Supplement(s) consisting of abstracts of congress papers.

"Sociological Abstracts" offers a collection of nonevaluative abstracts which reflects the world's serial literature in sociology and related disciplines. Each of the five issues of SA contains the following:

Selection and coverage: three types of journals have been distinguished in the following order of priority: Type 1 - journals published by sociological associations, groups, faculties and institutes; and periodicals containing the word "sociology" in their title. These are abstracted fully, irrespective of language of publication.

Type 2 - journals from such related areas as anthropology, economics, education, medicine, community development, philosophy, statistics, political science, etc. Such journals are abstracted selectively.

Type 3 - journals from the humanities and journals of general circulation wherein scholars and laymen publish discussions or criticism of sociology and sociological topics. These journals are abstracted selectively.

SA desires to receive an abstract together with a reprint of the document itself (article, monograph, essay, book). Publishers and editors are urged to send copies of new publications for abstracting, or to initiate the preparation of abstracts on forms supplied gratis on request.

Other services and publications available:

- Information entered into the database since 1963 is available online to information professionals from BRS (file label SOCA), Data-Star (file label SOCA), and Dialog (file 37)

- Sociosearch - a service offering researchers and librarians an opportunity to consult with information specialists who answer research questions with fast comprehensive searches of SA and related databases;

- Social planning/Policy, and Development Abstracts (SOPODA) - published since 1979 as a response to the expressed needs of scholars and educators, for a compression of the applied sociology and social science literature into an easily accessible format;

- Note Us - a free newsletter to facilitate communication between the producers of SA and its several thousands of users;

- A slide/tape show "Sociological Abstracts - in Print and Online" offering information and instruction on use of this comprehensive sociological database. The presentation is available for purchase ($70) or it can be borrowed for a two-week period, at no charge.

- A manual - a free brochure - "Your Guide to Searching Sociological Abstracts using a Personal Computer";

- The now completed first edition of the SA Thesaurus of Sociological Terms is being used to index all SA and SOPODA records; Dialog Information Services will mount the online thesaurus;

Subscription to SA is $ 325 per year. Single issues are $ 50. Orders and enquiries can be placed with:

EDITORSHIP OF "INTERNATIONAL SOCIOLOGY"

The International Sociological Association is seeking to appoint a new Editor to succeed Martin Albrow who will relinquish the post after editing Volume 5, Number 4, December 1990. The new Editor should be in a position to take up duties in the second half of 1990 to prepare Volume 6, Number 1, March 1991.

The ISA will be looking for an Editor who has command over the English language, is in a country with good postal and telephone communications, can secure financial support for the necessary office accommodation, editorial assistance, and can maintain and develop the journal as a service to the ISA members and to sociology worldwide.

It is hoped to make an appointment by the end of 1989. Persons interested for themselves, or who wish to recommend others, should get in touch initially with the President, Professor Margaret Archer, Department of Sociology, University of Warwick, Warwick, Coventry CV4 7AL, United Kingdom, tel: 44-203-523499

SMALL ASSOCIATIONS IN THE ISA
AN "IRISH" COMMENT

by Robert L. Miller
Department of Social Studies
The Queen's University of Belfast, Belfast BT7 1NN
Northern Ireland

Membership in the ISA can take a variety of forms, both individual and collective. Individual membership, particularly through joining one or more of the ISA Research Committees, is most relevant for sociologists in their work. I suspect that most of us see the ISA as an association through the "rose coloured glasses" of our own particular research committee memberships. One tends to forget that individual memberships, and the research committees that go with them, were an innovation that did not come into being until well after the creation of the ISA itself. The ISA came into being in 1919 as a confederation of 21 national sociological societies. The national societies, category "A" membership, still make up the core of the ISA as it functions as an institution. The main legislative and, through its appointment of the Executive Committee, ultimately also the main governing body of the ISA is the ISA Council, attended by voting delegates from the category "A" societies. Over the years the basic structure of the ISA as an association of national sociological societies has become obscured, more as a reflection of the success of the research committees and the popularity of individual membership than through any withering away of the original structure. For most of us, contact with the ISA on a national basis takes place at a double remove; through delegates appointed by a national association that we may not even participate in actively.

The relationship between the ISA and the Sociological Association of Ireland and sociologists working in Ireland is, I suspect, a fairly common case. Sociology in Ireland only began to take on any real significance as a discipline in the academic institutions at the beginning of the seventies. The Sociological Association of Ireland (which, incidentally, enjoys the active participation of sociologists from both sides of the Irish border) was set up in the early seventies and first affiliated with the ISA shortly after that. The Sociological Association of Ireland can be typed as a small, but active, national association. Membership remains stable at just under two hundred (there are hardly 200 sociologists in Ireland - activity in a related discipline is a sufficient criteria for membership; there are members located outside of the island and a student membership category). The SAI supports a variety of activities; including an annual conference* and several workshops, publishes a quarterly bulletin and manages to produce under its auspices about one book a year on an Irish topic. With a busy programme and no sources of financial support other than dues, finances are always tight. This led to a decision several years ago to withdraw from national membership in the ISA. The decision was taken on financial grounds. SAI members felt that category "A" affiliation did not provide any significant advantages beyond those of individual membership except for the right to send delegates to the quaterly meetings of the ISA. The decision to leave the ISA was fortunately reversed at the 1988 annual general meeting but only with the proviso that the Association's delegates to the ISA would explore the possibilities for increasing the concrete advantages of Category "A" membership. One should note that the argument that tipped the debate in favour of retaining affiliation with the ISA was an analogy with individual membership in the Sociological Association of Ireland. An individual who is a member of the SAI, particularly those who are in secure, fulltime position paying full dues, probably does not get "value for money" from membership in the national association. The membership dues are in effect a subsidy that benefits sociology in Ireland collectively. Similarly, belonging to the ISA as a Category "A" member in effect subsidises an international association that benefits international sociology collectively more than it provides a direct payoff to the national association in question. In particular, without the ISA there would not be ISA research committees.

So, so far so good; the SAI remains in the ISA and broadening the practical benefits of Category "A" membership are to be considered. The problem, however, is that it is difficult to see what additional benefits can come from Category "A". While we as a small national association are subject to financial constraints, our financial difficulties must be insignificant compared to many of the other Category "A" members. The ISA seems to have a policy of directing its limited capacity for aid to those that really need it, such as some assistance to members from "non-affluent" countries for attendance at the World Congress, and that obviously should continue. The SAI could perhaps use the ISA Bulletin more to publicise its own activities but there are practical difficulties in placing items in the Bulletin well enough in advance of the actual event to be of any use and most likely anyone abroad who is seriously interested in Irish sociology would already be aware of the SAI.

As the SAI's International Secretary and a delegate to the ISA, it fell to me to contemplate this problem. In doing so, I noted that the financial constraints suffered by the SAI which caused us to re-evaluate our ISA membership must affect a large number of other ISA Category "A" members. Looking down the Category "A" roll, there are more small nations with what must be small sociological associations than there are large, wealthy nations. Many of these are in the "Third World" and are the proper candidates of ISA support. In between the wealthy few and the deserving poor, however, there does seem to be a large number (perhaps a majority) of associations that must, like us, live on a shoestring. Thinking further, and beyond just finances, I would suspect that many of the problems faced by sociologists in Ireland are mirrored by those working in other nations. Irish sociology is sometimes a peripheral sociology, being overshadowed by British sociological concerns. I would suspect that many of the problems that this entails must be common to many more nations; such as having to go abroad to complete postgraduate training, upon the completion of training often having to remain abroad in order to find work, having Irish jobs taken by "foreign" sociologists (Here, I may as well nail my colours to the mast -- I am one of these "foreigners"), developing teaching materials, and a sociology generally, that is specific to one's own society and, in the main, just avoiding eclipse by the sociologies of larger nations. There are also factors that, while they are problems for sociology in larger nations as well, affect sociologists working in smaller nations more; for instance, a lack of research funding and the closed nature of the allocation of what funds and jobs there are so that both allocation and receipt are monopolized by a literally handful of individuals. Also, in small societies individual sociologists are more "visible" and their academic freedom is more vulnerable, particularly with the blurring of the division between the sociological and the political that can occur when the state is under threat, as it is with the current "Troubles" in Ireland.

At present, international sociological contacts tend to go out from the centre to the periphery and then back in again. The result is that there is probably less contact than there should be between the smaller associations and their respective memberships who may have more in common with each other than the larger bodies they normally orbit. I would think that the ISA could provide some kind of practical benefit in the general area of promoting lateral contacts between the smaller associations; though I must confess that I get stuck when I try to think of what form these mechanisms would actually take. This column should be seen as "thinkpiece" that may strike responsive chords elsewhere among the widely distributed readership of the Bulletin. Perhaps these issues should be raised initially by the ISA Executive Committee or discussed at the next World Congress. Preliminary to that, individuals or associations could contact the ISA, perhaps placing their own views on record in the Bulletin, or, alternatively, writing to me directly. Then, perhaps the ISA could develop a perception as to whether these issues are in fact real and, if so, the manner in which to proceed.

* The next annual conference of the Sociological Association of Ireland will take place in Galway during May 1989. THE LJUBLJANA SUMMER SCHOOL AND THE LJUBLJANA RESEARCH FORUM

Following a proposal by the Faculty of Sociology, Political Science and Journalism of the Edvard Kardelj University in Ljubljana (Yugoslavia) the International Sociological Association has created a Ljubljana Committee to organize the Ljubljana Summer School and the Ljubljana Research Forum.

The Ljubljana Committee consists of:

Karl M. van Meter, Chair (LISH-CNRS, 54 bd Raspail, 75006 Paris, France, tel. 42.22.83.96, e-mail USDC200 at FRORS31)

Felix R. Geyer (SISWO, P.O.Box 19079, 1000 GB Amsterdam, Netherlands, tel. 31-20-24.00.75, e-mail A716HOX at HASARA11)

Henry Teune (School of Arts and Sciences, Political Science Dept, Univ of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia PA 19104-6215, USA, tel. 215-898.7641, USA), Jan Trost (Dept Sociology, Uppsala Univ, Box 513, 751 20 Uppsala, Sweden, tel. 18-15.54.00, e-mail SOCCX at SEUDAC21).

SUMMER SCHOOL

In order to organize a Summer School between early June and early September 1989, the Ljubljana Committee invites you to propose two to three-week long graduate or post-graduate level courses in sociology. They should cover both theoretical and the empirical-methodological aspects of the domain concerned. They can even be divided into twin parallel courses: one covering theoretical aspects; the other covering empirical-methodological aspects.

Interested teachers should send a course outline to each of the members of the Ljubljana Committee as soon as possible. The intention of the Committee is to find financing to pay for travel, lodging and board for all teachers.

No definite fee has yet been established for students who would like to attend, but those who wish to be kept up to date should also contact a Ljubljana Committee member as soon as possible.

RESEARCH FORUM

The Research Forum was founded in order to promote the internationalization of social research, to reveal the commonalities and differences between specific (national) research approaches, and to establish a solid basis for cross-national scientific cooperation. Particularly, the Forum ought to stimulate inter-disciplinary approaches and integration whenever possible, and to contribute to further development of social theories and research by stimulating and offering opportunities for:

- comparative and collaborative research, particularly in subjects and areas where it is not well developed, but has great significance for the social sciences;
- bringing together smaller groups of social scientists involved in innovative approaches;
- meetings, information exchange and dissemination, and planning future activities.

An important rationale for the Forum is based upon necessity to create new, channels and opportunities for communication and collaboration of social scientists across the world. Thus, the Forum is open for suggestions and proposals regarding its activities to universities and other institutions of higher education, research institutions and professional, both national and international associations, as well as individual social scientists.

The Forum is designed to create a stimulating intellectual atmosphere in the form of:

- research networks for the advancement of long-term research projects based on professional contacts among researchers with similar research interest;
- colloquia and workshops of smaller research teams, with the purpose to exchange information and plan future activities;
- meetings of editorial groups for the publication of research findings in cooperation with the publishers;
- meetings of larger research clusters (e.g. ISA Research Committees);
- scientific conferences stimulating or discussing results of research projects.

The Research Committees and ISA members interested in cooperation with the Forum should get in touch with the members of the Ljubljana Committee (see above) or the Director of the Forum:
