Football's Dark Side: Corruption, Homophobia, Violence and Racism in the Beautiful Game

By Ellis Cashmore and Jamie Cleland

Association football is the richest, most popular sport in history with a multicultural global following encompassing all religions. It is also riven with corruption, racism, homophobia and a violence that has for decades resisted all attempts to tame it. It is this Janus-faced quality that makes football so thrilling. Countless books have focused on the visibly glamorous, wholesome and admirable aspects of the sport. Cashmore and Cleland, by contrast, examine the unpleasant, sleazy and downright nasty aspects – football's dark side. Their approach is not to pontificate or judge, but to express the views of thousands of football fans on the game they love, but which they know has an unpleasant underside. Using their innovative topfan.co.uk research platform, Cashmore and Cleland have interviewed thousands of fans to present a matchless account of football from a new perspective. This is how fans view football's dark side.

Sport and Social Exclusion in Global Society By Ramón Spaaij, Jonathan Magee and Ruth Jeanes

Social exclusion is one of the most pressing challenges in post-industrial societies, encompassing economic, social, cultural and political dimensions. This important new book critically examines the relationship between sport and social exclusion, from global and cross-cultural perspectives.

The book analyses sport and social exclusion by focusing on three key questions:

How does social exclusion affect participation in sport? How is social exclusion (re)produced, experienced, resisted, and managed in sport? How is sport used to combat social exclusion and promote social inclusion in other life domains? To answer these questions, the authors discuss and critically reflect on existing knowledge and in-depth case studies from Europe, Australasia, Africa and Latin America.

The book illuminates the relationship between sport and social exclusion in Global North and Global South contexts, addressing key issues in contemporary social science such as social inequality, worklessness, gender, disability, forced migration, homelessness and mental health. Sport and Social Exclusion in Global Society is important reading for all students, researchers and policy-makers with an interest in sport sociology, sport development, sport management, or the relationship between sport and wider society.

CALL FOR PAPERS

High Performance Disability Sports Coaching

Dear colleagues,

We write to formally invite expressions of interest to contribute to our book: 'High Performance Disability Sports Coaching' contracted with Routledge.

The book is a socio-cultural text that will comprise case study chapters (approx. 5000 words each), based on an interview (or interviews) with a coach working in high performance disability sport exploring the history of the coach, and their involvement with the sport, team and/or athlete, and, examination of prevailing, enduring or contemporary sociocultural issues related to their coaching practice, pedagogy and philosophy.

We have already received the full publishing contract for the book and have a number of identified chapters/authors, but we are keen to encourage more so that we can make sure the book is as sport, case study, author and as regionally diverse as it can be to broaden its appeal.

For now, we are calling for general expressions of interest from interested potential chapter authors. To this end, if you would like register your expression of interest and to be considered as a potential contributor, we would be grateful if you would provide the following information by email to either g.kohe@worc.ac.uk or d.peters@worc.ac.uk as soon as you can.

At this stage, we simply ask that you provide us with as much information as you are able to under the following sections.

- Your name (and that of any other potential co-authors)
- Your current position and country
- A brief academic background and any pertinent publications
- The disability sport that would be the focus of your case study
- The name and 'high performance' coaching status of the coach you would intend to use as your case study

By providing his information you are not committing contractually to writing a chapter, you are just expressing an interest to be included. We will more formally invite selected authors to contribute a full chapter to the book once we have an editorial meeting with Routledge.

To this end, whilst this expression of interest is not supposed to be overly arduous, the more information you can provide to us at this point, the better.

Many thanks for reading this invitation and we hope to receive your expression of interest soon.

If you feel that you know other colleagues that might be interested, qualified and positioned to express an interest, please do forward this invitation to them and indeed to any relevant academic networks to which you belong.

Best wishes,

Geoff & Derek

Dr Geoffery Z. Kohe & Professor Derek M Peters
