Tenure-track Assistant Professor in Global Science and Technology Studies (STS)

The School of Social Sciences invites applications for a tenure-track position of Assistant Professor in Sociology with a specialization in Global (STS). We particularly encourage candidates whose research expertise strongly emphasizes transnational dimensions of science, technology, and society. The candidate should demonstrate a scale of theoretical and empirical analysis that cuts across geographical boundaries. The field of specialization includes but not limited to: health and medicine; cities and infrastructures; information technology and data analytics; or risk and disaster. Methodological focus is open. Scholars with qualitative, quantitative, or mixed research methods are equally welcome to apply.

The candidate should have a strong publication record and teaching experience. A Ph.D. in Sociology, Anthropology, Science and Technology Studies (STS), or a related social-science discipline at the time of appointment is required. Ability to conduct research in interdisciplinary setting is preferable. The successful applicant is expected to teach in English at both undergraduate and graduate levels.
