

Connecting sociological research with social problems and public policies: implications for Southern European societies.

Joint Call for Papers

RES-Revista Española de Sociología, Spanish Journal of Sociology
SOCILOGIA ON LINE, Journal of the Portuguese Sociological Association
Sociologia Italiana. AIS Journal of Sociology, journal of the Italian Sociological Association

Revista Española de Sociología, journal of the Spanish Sociological Association [Call, pag. 2]

SOCILOGIA ON LINE, Journal of the Portuguese Sociological Association [Call, pag. 4]

Sociologia Italiana. AIS Journal of Sociology – Associazione Italiana di Sociologia [Call, pag. 7]

RES

Revista Española de Sociología

»» Call for papers

SPECIAL ISSUE
SPANISH JOURNAL OF SOCIOLOGY
<http://fes-sociologia.com/>

"Connecting sociological research with social problems and public policies: implications for Southern European societies".

Call for papers in collaboration with "Sociologia On Line", the official journal of the Portuguese Sociological Association (available at <http://revista.aps.pt/>) and "Sociologia Italiana. AIS Journal of Sociology", the official journal of the Italian Sociological Association (available at <http://sociologiaitaliana.egeaonline.it/>)

Guest editors

Luis Baptista (luisv.baptista@fesh.unl.pt)
María Dolores Martín-Lagos López (lmilagos@ugr.es)
Mar Venegas (mariter@ugr.es)
Ana Romão (anaromao74@gmail.com)
Consuelo Corradi (c.corradi@lumsa.it)

Background

Europe is facing new and radical challenges that demand extraordinary resilience from EU members, especially southern European societies, because of their outlying position and specific social problems in comparison with their EU neighbours. The difficulties of building a united Europe in the wake of the economic, financial and political crisis have exposed divergences in EU governance. In this context, sociology is an important tool to inform public policies and to provide the general public with an understanding of current challenges. The uses of sociology have social, political and practical implications in fields that are especially significant for southern European societies, such as welfare, work and employment, education, migration, social cohesion and political participation.

FEDERACIÓN ESPAÑOLA
DE SOCIOLOGÍA
C/ Montalbán, 8. 28014
Madrid/Spain
www.fes-sociologia.com

RES

is the official journal of the Spanish Sociological Federation
res@fes-sociologia.com

Indexed in:

Scopus®

However, the usual tensions in the organization of scientific research are now particularly intense in terms of how the sociological knowledge utility is understood and communicated. The trend toward internationalization in current research systems forces research communities to compete in a global market of scientific production, where English is the dominant language, and to publish results for an academic audience. Simultaneously there is a pressing need to make sociological knowledge relevant and applicable to regional and local problems.

Aims and scope of the Special Issue

This special issue will discuss the challenges and dilemmas of different sociological orientations in order to complement internationalization and academic research with the uses of sociology aimed at solving social public problems in specific territorial contexts. Participants are invited to send papers on the relevance of sociological knowledge in recent years as a means to understanding southern European societies, at a local, regional and international level. We especially invite papers on the following topics:

- Empirical and conceptual approaches on social problems in Southern European societies, specially related to knowledge transfer and their use in public policies.
- Impact of the economic crisis on the social reality of Southern Europe. Transformations in institutions, social movements and forms of coexistence.
- Analysis and evaluation of European policies and their impact on different European realities.
- Knowledge transfer in sociology: conceptual approaches, organizational modes and research.
- The role of sociology as an academic and scientific discipline to detect social problems and contribute to the design of public policies in Europe.

Languages

The special issue accepts papers in Spanish, English and Portuguese.

Authors' guidelines

People interested in contributing to this Special Issue are invited to consult the publication guidelines of the Spanish Journal of Sociology (Revista Española de Sociología). <http://www.fes-sociologia.com/instrucciones-para-los-autores/pages/240/>

Peer Review

All research articles published by RES undergone rigorous peer review, based on initial editor screening and anonymized refereeing by at least two anonymous referees. The review process is organized conjointly by both the Guest Editors and the RES Editor for special issues.

Timing

- Extended Abstracts (between 1000-1500 words) and key words: until 15th of November to be sent to the guest editors (email)
- Confirmation of acceptance to authors: 1st of December 2017
- Submission of full text: 1st of March 2018
- Double-blind review: March – April 2018
- Decision on manuscript after review: 1st of May 2018
- Revision and resubmission of final manuscript: 1st of July 2018
- Expected date of publication: September 2018

Coordination with “Sociologia On Line” and “Sociologia Italiana”: this call for papers has been released jointly by “Sociologia On Line”, the official journal of the Portuguese Sociological Association, and “Sociologia Italiana. The AIS Journal of Sociology”, the official journal of the Italian Sociological Association.

Authors may decide freely the journal they would like to submit their proposals (a proposal should be sent to one of the special issues only). The Guest Editors will coordinate the evaluation processes of the articles submitted.

The RES is the official journal of the Spanish Federation of Sociology. It indexed in Scopus, WOS Thomson-Reuters and others bibliographic data bases. In 2016 the RES obtained the “Quality Label for Scientific Publications” awarded by the Spanish Foundation of Science and Technology (FECYT).

CALL FOR PAPERS

Special Issue, 2018

SOCIOLOGIA ON LINE, the official journal of the Portuguese Sociological association, <http://revista.aps.pt>

"CONNECTING SOCIOLOGICAL RESEARCH WITH SOCIAL PROBLEMS AND PUBLIC POLICIES: IMPLICATIONS FOR SOUTHERN EUROPEAN SOCIETIES"

Call for papers in collaboration with "Spanish Journal of Sociology (RES-Revista Española de Sociología)", the official journal of the Spanish Sociological Federation (available at <http://www.fes-sociologia.com/>) and "Sociologia Italiana. AIS Journal of Sociology", the official journal of the Italian Sociological Association (available at <http://sociologiaitaliana.egeaonline.it/>)

Guest editors

Luís Baptista (luísv.baptista@fcsh.unl.pt)
María Dolores Martín-Lagos López (lmilag@ugr.es)
Mar Venegas (mariter@ugr.es)
Ana Romão (anaromao74@gmail.com)
Consuelo Corradi (c.corradi@lumsa.it)

Background

Europe is facing new and radical challenges that demand extraordinary resilience from EU members, especially southern European societies, because of their outlying position and specific social problems in comparison with their EU neighbours. The difficulties of building a united Europe in the wake of the economic, financial and political crisis have exposed divergences in EU governance. In this context, sociology is an important tool to inform public policies and to provide the general public with an understanding of current challenges. The uses of sociology have social, political and practical implications in fields that are especially significant for southern European societies, such as welfare, work and employment, education, migration, social cohesion and political participation.

Associação Portuguesa de Sociologia

Associação Portuguesa de Sociologia

Av. Prof. Aníbal de Bettencourt, 9 / 1600-189 Lisboa | Tel: 351 217804738 | E-mail: aps@aps.pt
<http://www.aps.pt> | <https://www.facebook.com/AP.Sociologia/>

Revista da Associação Portuguesa de Sociologia

However, the usual tensions in the organization of scientific research are now particularly intense in terms of how the sociological knowledge utility is understood and communicated. The trend toward internationalization in current research systems forces research communities to compete in a global market of scientific production, where English is the dominant language, and to publish results for an academic audience. Simultaneously there is a pressing need to make sociological knowledge relevant and applicable to regional and local problems.

Aims and scope of the Special Issue

This special issue will discuss the challenges and dilemmas of different sociological orientations in order to complement internationalization and academic research with the uses of sociology aimed at solving social public problems in specific territorial contexts. Participants are invited to send papers on the relevance of sociological knowledge in recent years as a means to understanding southern European societies, at a local, regional and international level. We especially invite papers on the following topics:

- Empirical and conceptual approaches on social problems in Southern European societies, specially related to knowledge transfer and their use in public policies;
- Impact of the economic crisis on the social reality of Southern Europe. Transformations in institutions, social movements and forms of coexistence;
- Analysis and evaluation of European policies and their impact on different European realities;
- Knowledge transfer in sociology: conceptual approaches, organizational modes and research;
- The role of sociology as an academic and scientific discipline to detect social problems and contribute to the design of public policies in Europe.

Languages

The special issue accepts papers in Portuguese, Spanish, French, Italian and English.

Authors' guidelines

People interested in contributing to this Special Issue are invited to consult the publication guidelines of SOCIOLOGIA ON LINE available at <http://revista.aps.pt/?cad=REV598338f081c77&area=004&sarea=001>.

Peer Review

All research articles published by SOCIOLOGIA ON LINE undergone rigorous peer review, based on initial editor screening and anonymized refereeing by at least two anonymous referees. The review process is organized conjointly by the Guest Editors and Editors of SOCIOLOGIA ON LINE.

Associação Portuguesa de Sociologia

Associação Portuguesa de Sociologia

Av. Prof. Aníbal de Bettencourt, 9 / 1600-189 Lisboa | Tel: 351 217804738 | E-mail: aps@aps.pt

<http://www.aps.pt> | <https://www.facebook.com/A.P.Sociologia/>

SOCIOLOGIA

ON LINE

Revista da Associação Portuguesa de Sociologia

Timing

- Extended Abstracts (between 1000-1500 words) and key words: until 15th of November to be sent to the guest editors (email)
- Confirmation of acceptance to authors: 1st of December 2017
- Submission of full text: 1st of March 2018
- Double-blind review: March – April 2018
- Decision on manuscript after review: 1st of May 2018
- Revision and resubmission: 1st of July 2018
- Expected date of publication (Online-First): September 2018

Coordination with “Revista Española de Sociología” and “Sociologia Italiana”

This call for papers has been released jointly by “RES-Revista Española de Sociología”, the official journal of the Spanish Sociological Association, and “Sociologia Italiana. The AIS journal of Sociology”, the official journal of the Italian Sociological Association.

Authors may decide freely the journal they would like to submit their proposals (a proposal should be sent to one of the special issues only). The Guest Editors will coordinate the evaluation processes of the articles submitted.

SOCIOLOGIA ON LINE is the journal of the Portuguese Sociological Association and is available at <http://revista.aps.pt/>. It has an open access policy and publishes original research on social sciences; reflections and short essays on the development of Sociology or on professional experiences on this area of work. SOCIOLOGIA ON LINE uses double-blind peer review and scientific papers will be independently evaluated by at least two experts. As an emerging journal, it is being indexed in the main bibliographical databases and information systems for scientific journals.

Associação Portuguesa de Sociologia

Associação Portuguesa de Sociologia

Av. Prof. Aníbal de Bettencourt, 9 / 1600-189 Lisboa | Tel: 351 217804738 | E-mail: aps@aps.pt

<http://www.aps.pt> | <https://www.facebook.com/A.P.Sociologia/>

SPECIAL SESSION OF THE ISSUE OCTOBER 2018

SOCIOLOGIA ITALIANA - AIS JOURNAL OF SOCIOLOGY

<http://sociologiaitaliana.egeaonline.it/>

"Connecting sociological research with social problems and public policies: implications for Southern European societies"

 CALL FOR PAPERS

in collaboration with "Sociologia On Line", the official journal of the Portuguese Sociological Association (available at <http://revista.aps.pt/>) and "The Spanish Journal of Sociology (RES-Revista Española de Sociología)", the official journal of the Spanish Sociological Federation
(available at <http://www.fes-sociologia.com/>)

Guest editors

Consuelo Corradi (c.corradi@lumsa.it)

Luís Baptista (luísv.baptista@fesh.unl.pt)

María Dolores Martín-Lagos López (lmilag@ugr.es)

Mar Venegas (mariter@ugr.es)

Ana Romão (anaromao74@gmail.com)

Background

Europe is facing new and radical challenges that demand extraordinary resilience from EU members, especially southern European societies, because of their outlying position and specific social problems in comparison with their EU neighbours. The difficulties of building a united Europe in the wake of the economic, financial and political crisis have exposed divergences in EU governance. In this context, sociology is an important tool to inform public policies and to provide the general public with an understanding of current challenges. The uses of sociology have social, political and practical implications in fields that are especially significant for southern European societies, such as welfare, work and employment, education, migration, social cohesion and political participation.

However, the usual tensions in the organization of scientific research are now particularly intense in terms of how the sociological knowledge utility is understood and communicated. The trend toward internationalization in current research systems forces research communities to compete in a global market of scientific production, where English is the dominant language, and to publish results for an academic audience. Simultaneously there is a pressing need to make sociological knowledge relevant and applicable to regional and local problems.

Aims and scope of the Special Session

This special Session of the Issue October 2018 will discuss the challenges and dilemmas of different sociological orientations in order to complement internationalization and academic research with the uses of sociology aimed at solving social public problems in specific territorial contexts. Participants are invited to send papers on the relevance of sociological knowledge in recent years as a means to understanding southern European societies, at a local, regional and international level. We especially invite papers on the following topics:

- Empirical and conceptual approaches on social problems in Southern European societies, specially related to knowledge transfer and their use in public policies.
- Impact of the economic crisis on the social reality of Southern Europe. Transformations in institutions, social movements and forms of coexistence.
- Analysis and evaluation of European policies and their impact on different European realities.
- Knowledge transfer in sociology: conceptual approaches, organizational modes and research.
- The role of sociology as an academic and scientific discipline to detect social problems and contribute to the design of public policies in Europe.

Languages

SOCIOLOGIA ITALIANA accepts papers in English and Italian.

Authors' guidelines

People interested in contributing to this Special Session are invited to consult the publication guidelines of the SOCIOLOGIA ITALIANA, available at: <http://sociologiaitaliana.egeaonline.it/>

Peer Review

All research articles published by SOCIOLOGIA ITALIANA undergone rigorous peer review, based on initial editor screening and anonymized refereeing by at least two anonymous referees.

Timing

- Extended Abstracts (between 1000-1500 words) and key words: until 15th of November to be sent to the guest editors (email)
- Confirmation of acceptance to authors: 1st of December 2017
- Submission of full text: 1st of March 2018
- Double-blind review: March – April 2018
- Decision on manuscript after review: 1st of May 2018
- Revision and resubmission: 1st of July 2018
- Expected date of publication (paper and on-line edition): October 2018

Coordination with “Revista Española de Sociología” and “Sociología On Line”: this call for papers has been released jointly by “RES-Revista Española de Sociología”, the official journal of the Spanish Sociological Association, and “Sociología On line”, the official journal of the Portuguese Sociological Association.

Authors may decide freely the journal they would like to submit their proposals (a proposal should be sent to one of the special issues only). The Guest Editors will coordinate the evaluation processes of the articles submitted.

SOCIOLOGIA ITALIANA is the journal of the Italian Sociological Association. It is published both in paper and on-line editions by Egea Publ. Co. (Milan). It publishes original research on social sciences; reflections and essays on the development of Sociology, or on professional experiences on this area of work. SOCIOLOGIA ITALIANA uses double-blind peer review and scientific papers will be independently evaluated by at least two experts.