

Assistant Professor position

Global Governance

Department of International Relations

Starting date: August 2018
Full Or Part Time: Full-Time
Application deadline: 1 February 2018

The Department of International Relations at Central European University invites applications for a full-time Assistant Professor position. Successful candidates will have expertise in the study of global governance. Preference will be given to candidates with a specific focus on sociologically informed approaches seeking to illuminate everyday experiences of (in) security and/or (under)development, transnational or international integration processes, and formal and informal international institutions. The department welcomes applications from those who also have a proven interest in qualitative methods and innovative teaching. Further advantages include regional expertise in the European, post-Soviet or Middle East areas, a track record of fieldwork research and/or policy or civic engagement.

Applicants should have, or be close to completing, a PhD in international relations, political science, or sociology and provide evidence for high level achievements to date or outstanding potential in research and teaching. Specific responsibilities include teaching three graduate courses per academic year, master's and doctoral supervision, engaging in high quality academic research, and attracting external research grants.
