General Conference on Organised Crime

Crossing territorial and disciplinary (b)orders: empirical, analytical and policy perspectives on organised crime

With a view to stimulating both scholarly debate and policy developments, the Conference offers a unique platform to collectively dissect, diagnose and discuss the characteristics, resources, strategies and modus operandi adopted by traditional and emerging criminal organisations operating both at the local and global levels, as well as the evolution of the responses at multiple levels and by different actors (international organisations, law enforcement, communities, social movements, etc.).

Children's Human Rights and Youth Justice: Progress, Challenges and Visions or many years, the NAYJ has advocated that youth justice law, policy and practice in England and Wales (and elsewhere) should reflect both the letter and the spirit of international human rights standards. Indeed, the NAYJ manifesto provides that 'responses to children in trouble should be compliant with, and informed by, international conventions and standards, in particular the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child' and 'arrangements for dealing with children in trouble must conform with, and be seen to conform with, principles of equality of treatment'.

By drawing on plenary presentations from leading experts in the field, together with delegate discussion and debate, the conference will assess the progress that has been, and is being made, in implementing the principles of international human rights standards in the youth justice sphere.

39th Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime

4 to 11 September 2022

The Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime is unique. It is organised by some of the world's leading educational and research institutions with the involvement of numerous governmental agencies, the judiciary, the professions, compliance bodies, and the business world. It provides a forum for the practical analysis and discussion of the real threats facing our world as a result of criminal and subversive activity.

From the very beginning it has been our mission to bring together anyone who has a responsibility to prevent and inhibit such abuse—no matter their background—to better understand the threats and to facilitate co-operation and collaboration in protecting all our economies and societies.

GLOBAL DIALOGUE

OPEN ACCESS

3 issues a year in multiple languages

< · Arabic · Bengali · Chinese (simplified) · Chinese >

Global Dialogue is the digital magazine of ISA. The first volume came out in 2010 as a newsletter. Global Dialogue now appears 3 times a year in multiple languages. It is open access and available to all. It is a lively forum for conducting debates and interviews within our discipline. It contains clashing views, visions and accounts from different corners of the globe, analysis of pressing issues of our time, discussions on theoretical approaches, and interviews with sociologists about the perspectives for our discipline. It offers a sociological lens on current world events, underlining our continuing relevance to public debates. The global community of ISA is welcome to contribute with articles and take part in this vivid exchange. Global Dialogue is made possible by the extraordinary energies and dedication of editorial teams around the world and by the contributions of our members.

Governance and Legitimacy in Brazilian Prison: From Solidarity Committees to the Primeiro Co- mando Da Capital (PCC) in Sao Paulo

Link to get book

Camila Nunes Dias
Invited author

Prisons became an object of increasing interest for the Social Sciences during the 20th century. In the 1950s, several aspects were the subject of academic reflection, especially in the North American literature. A central issue that many of the axes of reflection on prisons have in common is how imprisoned individuals have adapted to disciplinary mechanisms—as well as resisted these mechanisms—through complex strategies that make use of individual or group actions. In this text we propose an analysis of prison governance based on the Brazilian experience and on the study of two political and institutional contexts in different periods, each of which is characterized by the existence of groups of prisoners claiming to represent the prison population through different discursive, normative and ideological frameworks.

New Realeses

Written by lawyer and psychotherapist Ximena Santaolalla, this story is based in a meticulous research about the military experience of the kaibiles during the dictatorship of general Rios Montt during the 80's.

Real interviews with militar personal who dissapeared dissidents, conflict survivors and journalists inspired this social research in a novel format.
