Welcome

Welcome address by the President of the International Sociological Association

Welcome to resplendent Yokohama on the Tokyo Bay. We are assembled here to address one of the most pressing issues of the day – inequality – that has inspired new thinking in sociology but also in neighboring sciences, not least in economics. Growing inequality has not only instigated new thinking but also new social movements. The last 4 years alone have seen the Arab Spring, the Indignados of Southern Europe, the spread of the Occupy Movement across many countries, the international student movement inspired by protest in Chile and Quebec, as well as transformed feminist, environmental, labor, human rights and indigenous people's movements. Nor must we forget the new reactionary and xenophobic movements. Propelling all these movements, and their often tragic denouements, are resurgent market forces engulfing labor, finance, and nature, and creating precarity, debt and ecological degradation.

Sociology has a long and distinguished history opposing market fundamentalism and supporting society's control over markets. This tradition is now most prominent in the South and in feminist and postcolonial thinking, but it stretches back to sociology's origins in 19th century Europe and it includes 20th century US sociology as well as its critical appropriation (or repudiation) by the rest of the world. We need to build on these traditions as we assess and address inequalities on local, national and global scales.

We do so under ever more difficult and unequal circumstances. As scientists and teachers, our own workplaces are increasingly hostage to market forces that generate polarizing inequalities in our midst, sometimes surreptitiously, sometimes through open, indiscriminate privatization. Thus, many sociologists from both the North and the South could not afford to be with us here in Japan. Perhaps there was a time when we could pretend to be outside the world we study, but that time has passed. Today, as we study society, we are simultaneously engulfed by it. A case in point is our host country, Japan, devastated by the tsunami of 2011 and the nuclear catastrophe that followed, causing the unequal destruction of communities and displacement of populations. This and the growing number of similar events call for a disaster sociology that is not just of society, not just in society but also for society.

We must continue to remake our sociological tradition, with full sensitivity to global inequalities even as we seek to transcend them, knitting together an ever greater range of interests and peoples. Here lies the challenge for 21st century sociology: to forge bonds across an unequal world. Wrestling with this challenge, the International Sociological Association has never been stronger, never more inclusive. That we are gathered together in record numbers is testimony to the ISA's vitality, and to the dedicated efforts of Research Committees, Working and Thematic Groups as well as the National Associations, to the detailed planning of the Program Committee and above all to the unstinting work of the ISA Secretariat and the Japanese Local Organizing Committee. Now that we are here let the global dialogue begin.

Allocution de bienvenue par le Président de l'Association internationale de sociologie

Bienvenue à Yokohama, dans cette ville magnifique de la baie de Tokyo. Nous sommes ici réunis pour traiter de l'un des problèmes actuellement les plus pressants – les inégalités –, un problème qui a inspiré de nouvelles réflexions en sociologie mais aussi dans les sciences proches, en particulier en économie. L'accroissement des inégalités n'est pas seulement à l'origine de nouvelles réflexions mais aussi de nouveaux mouvements sociaux. Sur les seules quatre dernières années, on a assisté au Printemps arabe, au mouvement des indignados dans le sud de l'Europe, à l'extension du mouvement Occupy à de nombreux pays, au mouvement international des étudiants inspiré par les manifestations au Chili et au Québec, mais aussi à une évolution des mouvements féministes, de défense de l'environnement, syndicaux, de défense des droits de l'homme et des peuples autochtones. Auxquels il faut ajouter les nouveaux mouvements réactionnaires et xénophobes. À l'origine de tous ces mouvements, et de leurs issues souvent tragiques, il y a un retour en force du marché, qui envahit le monde du travail et de la finance ainsi que le monde naturel, et crée de la précarité, de la dette et une dégradation de l'environnement.

La sociologie s'est depuis longtemps distinguée par son opposition au fondamentalisme du marché et sa défense d'un contrôle de la société sur les marchés. Cette tradition est aujourd'hui particulièrement vivace dans les pays du Sud et dans la pensée féministe et postcoloniale, mais elle remonte aux origines de la sociologie dans l'Europe du XIXe siècle et englobe la sociologie nord-américaine du XXe siècle ainsi que son appropriation critique (ou son rejet) par le reste du monde. Il nous faut partir de ces courants de pensée traditionnels lorsque nous faisons un bilan et traitons de la question des inégalités à l'échelle locale, nationale et mondiale.

C'est ce que nous faisons dans des conditions toujours plus difficiles et inégales. En tant que chercheurs et enseignants, nous nous trouvons sur notre propre lieu de travail de plus en plus pris en otage par les forces du marché qui engendrent y compris dans notre milieu un phénomène de polarisation des inégalités, parfois subrepticement, parfois par le biais d'une privatisation directe et indifférenciée. C'est ainsi que de nombreux sociologues, à la fois du Nord et du Sud, n'ont pas eu les moyens de se joindre à nous ici au Japon. Peut-être y a-t-il eu une époque où nous pouvions agir comme si nous étions extérieurs au monde que nous étudions, mais cette époque est révolue. Aujourd'hui, lorsque nous étudions la société, nous sommes en même temps immergés dans celle-ci. Le pays qui nous accueille aujourd'hui, le Japon, en est un exemple significatif : un pays dévasté par le tsunami de 2011 puis par la catastrophe nucléaire qui ont entraîné de manière inégale la destruction du tissu local et le déplacement de populations. Cela – ainsi que le nombre croissant d'événements de même nature – requiert une sociologie des catastrophes qui ne soit pas seulement de la société ni dans la société mais aussi pour la société.

Il nous faut continuer à réviser notre tradition sociologique, en tenant pleinement compte des inégalités dans le monde tout en cherchant à les transcender, en tissant des liens entre des intérêts et des personnes de plus en plus divers. Ici réside le principal enjeu de la sociologie du XIXe siècle : établir des liens à travers un monde inégalitaire. En s'attelant à ce défi, l'Association internationale de Sociologie apparaît plus forte et plus inclusive que jamais. Le nombre record de personnes présentes ici témoigne de la vitalité de l'ISA et des efforts déployés par les Comités de Recherche, Groupes de Travail, Groupes thématiques et Associations nationales, ainsi que de l'organisation dans le détail réalisée par le Comité du Programme et surtout du travail ininterrompu du Secrétariat de l'ISA et du Comité Local d'Organisation au Japon. Maintenant que nous sommes ici présents, que le dialogue global commence.

Discurso de bienvenida del Presidente de la Asociación Internacional de Sociología

Bienvenidos a la maravillosa ciudad de Yokohama, en la bahía de Tokio. Estamos aquí reunidos para tratar una de las cuestiones más urgentes de nuestro tiempo –el tema de las desigualdades– que ha inspirado nuevos planteamientos en sociología pero también en las ciencias cercanas, sobre todo en economía. El aumento de la desigualdad no sólo ha originado nuevos planteamientos sino también nuevos movimientos sociales. Sólo en los últimos cuatro años, hemos visto la primavera árabe, los indignados del sur de Europa, la extensión del movimiento Occupy a muchos países, el movimiento estudiantil internacional inspirado por las protestas en Chile y Quebec, así como una renovación de los movimientos feministas, ecologistas, obreros, de defensa de los derechos humanos y de los pueblos indígenas. A los cuales hay que añadir otros nuevos, de carácter xenófobo y reaccionario. Lo que impulsó todos estos movimientos, así como sus desenlaces a menudo trágicos, son las fuerzas renovadas del mercado que envuelven el mundo laboral, la finanza y la naturaleza, creando precariedad, deuda y degradación ambiental.

La sociología tiene una larga y remarcable historia de oposición al fundamentalismo de mercado y de defensa de un control de la sociedad sobre los mercados. Esta tradición es ahora más prominente en los países del Sur y en el pensamiento feminista y postcolonial, pero se remonta a los orígenes de la sociología en la Europa del siglo XIX y engloba la sociología estadounidense del siglo XX así como su apropiación crítica (o rechazo) por el resto del mundo. Necesitamos apoyarnos en estas tradiciones cuando evaluamos y tratamos las desigualdades a escala local, nacional y global.

Es lo que hacemos en unas condiciones cada vez más difíciles y poco equitativas. Como investigadores y docentes, nuestro propio trabajo está siendo cada vez más el rehén de unas fuerzas del mercado que generan desigualdades, siendo fuente de divisiones en nuestro entorno, a veces de forma encubierta, otras veces mediante una declarada privatización indiscriminada. Así pues, muchos sociólogos, tanto del Norte como del Sur, no han podido permitirse venir para estar con nosotros aquí en Japón. Tal vez hubo una época en la que podíamos pretender estar fuera del mundo que estudiábamos, pero ésta ya pasó. Hoy en día, cuando estudiamos la sociedad, estamos a la vez inmersos en ella. Un buen ejemplo es nuestro país anfitrión, Japón, un país devastado por el tsunami de 2011 y la catástrofe nuclear que siguió, provocando de forma desigual una destrucción del tejido social y el desplazamiento de poblaciones. Eso, junto con un número cada vez mayor de acontecimientos similares, exige una sociología de los desastres que no sea sólo de la sociedad ni en la sociedad sino también para la sociedad.

Tenemos que seguir remodelando nuestra tradición sociológica, manteniéndonos plenamente atentos a las desigualdades en el mundo en tanto tratamos de superarlas, uniendo una variedad cada vez más amplia de intereses y de personas. Ése es el reto para la sociología del siglo XXI: crear lazos en un mundo desigual. Al enfrentar este reto, la Asociación Internacional de Sociología se ha vuelto más fuerte y más inclusiva que nunca. El récord de participación registrado para este congreso es testimonio de la vitalidad de la AIS y de la dedicación de los Comités de Investigación, Grupos de Trabajo y Temáticos y Asociaciones Nacionales, así como del trabajo detallado de planificación realizado por el Comité del Programa y sobre todo de la labor incansable del Secretariado de la AIS y del Comité Organizador Local en Japón. Ahora que estamos aquí, que empiece el diálogo global.

Welcome from ISA Vice-President for the Congress Program

Dear colleagues,

Our Congress in Yokohama is the culmination of four years of collective preparation – a task that has been both challenging and enriching. In Gothenburg we proposed to set up an event on the subject of Facing Inequality in a Global World. As has been expressed in various documents, we consider it to be undoubtedly today's most critical debate. Almost all academic institutions, international organizations, governments, civil and political organizations have been focusing their attention on the causes and consequences of poverty and inequality. According to UNESCO's estimates, there are today no less than 774 million illiterate adults in the world; 162 million children suffer from moderate to severe stunted growth; only 25% of the girls from poor rural areas will achieve, towards 2030, the goal of completing primary education. According to OXFAM, half of the world's wealth is in the hands of 1% of the population; seven out of ten human beings live in countries where economic inequality has increased over the last 30 years. With inequality aggravated by racism, discrimination, violence, migration, war, natural disasters, environmental pollution, climate change, unrestrained destruction and/or extraction of natural resources, gender inequity, age, disability, collective and individual identity based on ethnic or religious grounds or sexual orientation, and even by the impossibility of an actual participation in collective decisions, there is not a single prediction pointing to a likely reverse of these trends in the next 50 or 100 years without the support of real effort, organized intelligence, and the determination of millions of human beings.

In this Congress the International Sociological Association brings together more than 6,000 experts in almost every field of social knowledge, willing to share their expertise to take part in this debate of our times from a unique perspective: one that aims to articulate what we know so as to analyze the dimensions, dynamics, processes of and reasons for the deepening of inequality and poverty, and to find alternatives to overcome those inequalities and poverty, which prevent the major part of the world population from enjoying the benefits of living in our planet and sharing their experiences, knowledge, and aspirations for the preservation and enrichment of humanity's historical heritage. We sincerely hope that this small contribution may feed your creativity and determination and stand out in your memory as a significant moment among the multiple efforts required to make this world of ours a better place.

Raquel Sosa

ISA Vice-President for the Congress Program

Bienvenue à l'ISA vice-président pour le programme du Congrès

Chers/Chères collègues,

Ce Congrès à Yokohama est l'aboutissement de quatre années de préparation collective – une tâche ardue et enrichissante à la fois. À Göteborg, nous avons prévu d'organiser une rencontre sur le thème Faire face à un monde d'inégalités dans un monde globalisé. Ainsi que nous l'avons exprimé à différentes occasions, nous considérons qu'il s'agit là, sans aucun doute, du débat fondamental de notre temps. Pratiquement toutes les institutions universitaires, les organismes internationaux, les gouvernements, les organisations civiles et politiques se sont intéressés aux causes et aux conséquences de la pauvreté et des inégalités. Selon les estimations de l'UNESCO, il n'y a aujourd'hui pas moins de 774 millions d'adultes analphabètes dans le monde; 162 millions d'enfants présentent un retard de croissance modéré ou grave; et vers 2030, seulement 25% des jeunes filles des zones rurales pauvres parviendront à terminer leurs études primaires. D'après OXFAM, la moitié de la richesse mondiale est entre les mains de 1% de la population; sept personnes sur dix vivent dans des pays où les inégalités économiques ont augmenté au cours des 30 dernières années. Les inégalités se trouvent renforcées par le racisme, la discrimination, la violence, les migrations, la guerre, les catastrophes naturelles, la pollution de l'environnement, le changement climatique, la destruction et/ou l'extraction effrénée des ressources naturelles, les inégalités entre les sexes, l'âge, le handicap, l'identité collective et individuelle définie en fonction de critères ethniques ou religieux ou de l'orientation sexuelle, et même l'impossibilité de participer réellement aux décisions collectives, et pas une seule prévision ne semble indiquer que cette problématique puisse être résolue dans les 50 à 100 années à venir sans le concours d'un véritable effort, d'une intelligence organisée et de la volonté de millions d'être humains.

À l'occasion de ce Congrès, l'Association internationale de Sociologie réunit plus de 6.000 spécialistes issus de pratiquement tous les domaines de la science sociale et désireux de partager leurs connaissances et leurs expériences afin de prendre part à ce débat contemporain dans une perspective inhabituelle – telle qui a pour objectif d'articuler les connaissances afin d'analyser les dimensions, les dynamiques, les processus et les raisons de l'aggravation des inégalités et de la pauvreté ainsi que les possibilités de remédier à ces inégalités et à cette pauvreté qui empêchent la majorité des êtres humains de bénéficier des avantages de vivre sur notre planète et de partager leurs expériences, leurs connaissances et leurs aspirations pour la préservation et l'enrichissement du patrimoine historique de l'humanité. Nous espérons sincèrement que cette modeste contribution nourrisse votre créativité et votre volonté et reste gravée dans votre mémoire comme une étape révélatrice des multiples efforts qui sont nécessaires pour faire de notre monde un monde meilleur.

Raquel Sosa

Vice-président de l'ISA pour le Programme du Congrès

Bienvenida por parte de ISA Vicepresidente para el programa del Congreso

Apreciados colegas:

Culminamos en Yokohama un trabajo, tan arduo como enriquecedor, de cuatro años de preparación colectiva de nuestro Congreso. Nos propusimos en Gotemburgo la realización de un evento con el tema de Enfrentar la desigualdad en un mundo global. Tal como lo hemos expresado en diversos documentos, consideramos que es éste, indudablemente, el debate crucial de nuestro tiempo. Prácticamente todas las instituciones académicas, los organismos internacionales, los gobiernos, las organizaciones civiles y políticas han dedicado su atención a plantear las causas y consecuencias de la pobreza y la desigualdad. UNESCO calcula que existen hoy no menos de setecientos setenta y cuatro millones de adultos analfabetas en el mundo; que ciento sesenta y dos millones de niños padecen retrasos de moderados a graves en su crecimiento; que sólo el veinticinco por ciento de las niñas de zonas rurales pobres alcanzará, hacia el 2030, el objetivo de concluir su enseñanza primaria. De acuerdo con OXFAM, la mitad de la riqueza del mundo está en manos del uno por ciento de la población; siete de cada diez seres humanos habitan en países en los que la desigualdad económica se ha incrementado durante los últimos treinta años. Agravada la desigualdad por el racismo, la discriminación, la violencia, la migración, la guerra, los desastres naturales, la contaminación ambiental, el cambio climático, la destrucción y/o extracción desenfrenada de recursos naturales, la inequidad de género, la edad, la discapacidad, la identidad colectiva

o individual por razones étnicas, religiosas o de preferencias sexuales, y hasta por la imposibilidad de participar efectivamente en decisiones colectivas, no existe una sola predicción que apunte en el sentido de que esta problemática pueda ser superada en los próximos cincuenta o cien años sin el concurso de un esfuerzo verdadero, la inteligencia organizada y la voluntad de millones de seres humanos.

La Asociación Internacional de Sociología reúne en este Congreso a más de seis mil especialistas en prácticamente todas las áreas del conocimiento social, dispuestos a compartir su conocimiento y experiencias para participar, desde una perspectiva inusual, en ese debate contemporáneo: aquella que propone la articulación de conocimientos para analizar las dimensiones, dinámicas, procesos, razones de la profundización y alternativas para la superación de la desigualdad y pobreza que impiden que la mayor parte de los seres humanos disfruten de los beneficios de vivir en este planeta y compartan sus experiencias, conocimientos y aspiraciones para la preservación y enriquecimiento del patrimonio histórico de la humanidad. Sinceramente esperamos que esta pequeña contribución alimente su creatividad y voluntad y quede grabada en su memoria como un momento significativo en los múltiples esfuerzos que se requieren para hacer del nuestro un mundo mejor.

Welcome from the President of the Japan Sociological Society

WELCOME

Welcome from the President of the Japan Sociological Society

The members of the Japan Sociological Society heartily welcome Congress participants from all over the world. Our association has a hundred-year history and currently has 3,800 members. For around a half century now, we have had the dream of inviting the ISA world congress to Japan. The realization of this dream is a great honor and pleasure for Japanese sociologists.

This Congress is a place to discuss a wide range of sociological topics as well as a place to make new colleagues and friends. As sociologists, it is our job to delve deeply into serious social problems such as discrimination, poverty, environmental degradation, and numerous problems in education and the workplace. Recently, we have experienced a number of unfortunate hate crimes in Japanese communities. Thanks, however, to the dedication of many sociologists and other specialists, we are making progress in reducing inequality and problems faced by immigrants.

Even though we contribute to society as specialists, we still feel that we lack sufficient knowledge and experience. This Congress provides us with an opportunity to enhance our knowledge and to acquire new information and perspectives. We develop friendships, not simply through socializing, but by sharing our views and concerns about issues that affect us all.

I am an environmental sociologist. Through a mutual concern for environmental issues shared by all countries, I have been able to make many friends around the world. And it has been an eye-opening experience and a joy to share information and know-how with colleagues, and also to hear why others have chosen to become environmental sociologists. At least here in Japan, environmental sociologists often participate in meetings in which they must respond to a room full of angry and critical voices. In such situations, my conversations with friends about their motivations for becoming environmental sociologists often give me courage. It is my sincere hope that all of the Congress participants will enjoy their time here, acquire useful information, and forge new relationships.

Yokohama is a port town located thirty minutes by train from Tokyo station. The port was open in 1859. Since then, it has seen the arrival of a wide variety of foreign visitors. The Americans were first to come, demanding political and commercial treaties with Japan, which had been completely closed off from the world up to that point. Next to arrive were the French, British, Dutch, and other Europeans. People from neighboring countries also came to Yokohama. A particularly large number came from China, forming what is now Yokohama's famous Chinatown, where you can enjoy delicious Chinese cuisine and Chinese culture. Nowadays, Koreans comprise an indispensable and essential group of foreigners in Yokohama, second only to the Chinese in number. Other essential foreign populations include Filipinos, Brazilians, and Vietnamese.

In Japan, Yokohama has the reputation of being an international city because of its history and diverse population. We hope that you will enjoy the atmosphere of this international city with its unique mix of history, culture, and modernity.

Hiroyuki Torigoe
President of the Japan Sociological Society

Bienvenue de la part du président du Japon sociologues la société

Les membres de la Société Japonaise de Sociologie sont très heureux d'accueillir les participants venus du monde entier pour assister à ce Congrès. Notre association, qui a cent ans d'histoire, compte actuellement 3.800 membres. Depuis près d'un demi-siècle, nous rêvions d'accueillir le congrès mondial de l'ISA au Japon. C'est un grand honneur et un immense plaisir pour les sociologues japonais d'avoir pu réaliser ce rêve.

Ce Congrès est à la fois un espace de discussion où débattre d'une multiplicité de sujets de sociologie et une occasion de faire la connaissance de nouveaux collègues et de nouer de nouvelles amitiés. En tant que sociologues, il nous appartient d'étudier en profondeur les graves problèmes de société tels que la discrimination, la pauvreté, la dégradation de l'environnement, ainsi que tous ceux qui se posent au niveau de l'éducation et du travail. Une série de crimes regrettables motivés par la haine ont été récemment commis au sein de communautés japonaises. Grâce à la mobilisation de nombreux sociologues et d'autres spécialistes, des progrès ont cependant été réalisés pour réduire les inégalités et les problèmes auxquels les immigrants sont confrontés.

Malgré notre apport à la société en tant que spécialistes, nous avons toujours le sentiment de manquer de connaissances et d'expérience. Ce Congrès est pour nous une occasion d'enrichir nos connaissances et d'accéder à des informations nouvelles et des points de vue différents. Ce n'est pas simplement au travers des relations sociales que nous nouons des amitiés, c'est aussi en partageant nos idées et nos inquiétudes sur des questions qui nous concernent tous.

Je suis sociologue de l'environnement. À travers notre intérêt commun pour les questions environnementales, j'ai pu me faire beaucoup d'amis dans le monde entier. Cela a été une expérience très enrichissante et une joie de partager des informations et des savoir-faire avec des collègues, et aussi de découvrir pourquoi d'autres, comme moi, ont choisi de devenir sociologues de l'environnement. Ici, au Japon, les sociologues de l'environnement participent souvent à des meetings où il leur faut répondre aux critiques massives d'un public en colère. Souvent, dans ces cas-là, mes conversations avec des amis sur ce qui les a motivés à devenir sociologues de l'environnement me donnent du courage. Je souhaite de tout cœur que tous les participants au Congrès passent un agréable séjour ici, recueillent des informations utiles et forgent de nouveaux liens.

Yokohama est une ville portuaire située à une demi-heure en train de Tokyo. Le port a été ouvert en 1859. Depuis cette date, il a vu se succéder une grande variété de visiteurs étrangers. Les Américains furent les premiers à venir, en quête de traités politiques et commerciaux avec un Japon demeuré jusqu'alors complètement isolé du reste du monde. Puis ce fut le tour des Français, des Britanniques, des Allemands et d'autres Européens. Des citoyens originaires de pays voisins sont également venus à Yokohama. Un nombre particulièrement important d'entre eux sont venus de Chine, donnant naissance au désormais célèbre « Chinatown » de Yokohama, où l'on peut savourer de délicieuses spécialités chinoises et découvrir la culture chinoise. Aujourd'hui, les Coréens constituent une communauté étrangère indispensable et essentielle à Yokohama, que seuls les Chinois devancent en nombre. Parmi les autres communautés étrangères importantes, il y a les Philippins, les Brésiliens et les Vietnamiens.

Au Japon, Yokohama a la réputation d'être une ville internationale, en raison de son histoire et de la diversité de sa population. Nous espérons que vous apprécierez son ambiance internationale faite d'un mélange unique d'histoire, de culture et de modernité.

Hiroyuki Torigoe

Président de la Société Japonaise de Sociologie

Bienvenida por parte de ISA Vicepresidente para el programa del Congreso

Los miembros de la Sociedad Japonesa de Sociología damos una cálida bienvenida a los congresistas venidos de todo el mundo. Nuestra asociación, que tiene cien años de historia, cuenta en la actualidad con 3.800 miembros. Desde hacía medio siglo, soñábamos con invitar el congreso mundial de la ISA a Japón. La realización de este sueño es para los sociólogos japoneses un gran placer y un honor.

Este Congreso es un lugar donde debatir sobre un amplio abanico de temas, así como un lugar donde hacer nuevas amistades y conocer colegas de otros países. Como sociólogos, es nuestra tarea profundizar en los graves problemas sociales que son la discriminación, la pobreza, la degradación del medio ambiente, así como numerosos problemas en el ámbito de la educación y el ámbito laboral. Últimamente, ha habido en las comunidades japonesas una serie de lamentables delitos motivados por el odio. No obstante, gracias al empeño de muchos sociólogos y demás especialistas, se han logrado avances en la reducción de las desigualdades y de los problemas a los que se enfrentan los inmigrantes.

Si bien contribuimos a la sociedad como especialistas, seguimos teniendo la impresión de que carecemos del suficiente conocimiento y experiencia. Este congreso es para nosotros una oportunidad de ampliar nuestros conocimientos y adquirir nuevos datos y perspectivas. No es sólo relacionándonos con nuestros compañeros que entablamos amistades, sino también compartiendo opiniones y preocupaciones sobre asuntos que nos afectan a todos.

Soy sociólogo ambiental. Gracias al interés por las cuestiones ambientales que preocupan en todos los países, he podido hacerme amigos en todo el mundo. Ha resultado ser una experiencia reveladora y un verdadero placer poder compartir con otros compañeros información, conocimientos y experiencia, así como descubrir por qué algunos habían elegido ser sociólogos ambientales. Por lo menos aquí, en Japón, los sociólogos ambientales participamos a menudo en reuniones donde tenemos que responder a una sala llena de voces críticas. Son situaciones en las que hablar con mis amigos sobre sus motivaciones para ser sociólogos ambientales a menudo me da ánimos. Espero sinceramente que todos los participantes al Congreso disfruten de su tiempo aquí, que obtengan información útil y forjen nuevas relaciones.

Yokohama es una ciudad portuaria situada a media hora en tren de Tokio. El puerto se abrió en 1859. Desde entonces, ha visto llegar a una gran variedad de visitantes extranjeros. Los primeros fueron los norteamericanos, en busca de tratados políticos y comerciales con Japón – un país que hasta entonces había estado completamente aislado del resto del mundo–. Luego llegaron franceses, británicos, alemanes, y otros europeos. Gente procedente de países vecinos también vinieron a Yokohama. Un número particularmente importante de ellos vinieron de China, formando lo que es ahora conocido como el “Chinatown” de Yokohama, donde se puede disfrutar de la exquisita gastronomía china y de su cultura. Hoy en día, los coreanos constituyen un grupo importante e indispensable de extranjeros en Yokohama, sólo superado en número por los chinos. Otras poblaciones extranjeras importantes son los filipinos, los brasileños y los vietnamitas.

En Japón, Yokohama tiene fama de ciudad cosmopolita, por su historia y su población variada. Esperamos que disfruten del ambiente de esta ciudad internacional, con su mezcla única de historia, cultura y modernidad.

Welcome from the Chair of the Japanese Local Organizing Committee

I am very pleased and honored to welcome you to Yokohama on behalf of the Japanese Local Organizing Committee of the ISA World Congress of Sociology, 2014.

This is the first World Congress held in East Asia. Japan and East Asia have a long history of tackling sociological problems a rapid economic growth has brought. We are facing many issues from local to global, and for future generations as well.

The local organizing committee consists of nineteen members gathered nationwide. We have had more than thirty regular meetings since May, 2008. We are proud of being a real national team.

The Japan Sociological Society has been maintaining close relationships with regional and sub-disciplinary associations. Twenty-nine associations established the Japan Consortium for Sociological Society in 2007. For this conference, they published Messages to the World, describing their history, major works and challenges. This represents an outline of all of Japanese sociology.

Some people might be concerned about the effects of the Fukushima nuclear disaster. As an environmental sociologist and a longtime critic of nuclear energy policy, I guarantee that Yokohama is now completely safe.

On March 11th, 2011, Japan had a serious challenge of three disasters, an earthquake, a tsunami, and the Fukushima nuclear accident. Since then, many colleagues have created and participated in the network of research and information exchange regarding the disasters that brought so much work to do and new challenges to face. A number of research groups have conducted surveys in almost every local area that suffered.

From Pacifico Yokohama, our conference venue, you can look over a beautiful bridge, the Yokohama Bay Bridge, a land mark of the area. As German sociologist Georg Simmel sharply described, bridges are a visualization of our will to link. I believe our sociological work is bridging East and West, South and North, female and male, past and future, young and old, nature and society, and bridging all kinds of sociological cleavages for more equal world. The Yokohama Congress will build bridges to change a separated world into an integrated one.

Pacifico Yokohama is located in a seaside urban area, called Minato Mirai 21, or "harbor of the future." A former shipyard was remodeled into a new city center. The uniquely-shaped Pacifico Yokohama is mirroring the fabulous seaside setting as it evokes nautical images, a wave, a ship, a sail. You will find that Yokohama is the ideal setting for observing and realizing the new reality of current Japan, and for thinking about the sustainable future.

Yokohama is also one of the most leading "eco-friendly city" with its Yokohama Smart City Project, its promotion of renewable energy, its encouragement of energy management in local communities and its next generation transportation systems. Diversified cuisine, arts and culture, and a dynamic range of urban landscapes and changing communities can be found in contemporary Yokohama. For your own sociological observations and experiences, Yokohama will make all the difference. Enjoy the conference and your stay. The Yokohama Congress is yours.

Koichi Hasegawa
Chair of the Japanese Local Organizing Committee

Bienvenue à l'ISA vice-président pour le programme du Congrès

C'est un grand plaisir et un honneur de vous accueillir à Yokohama, au nom du Comité local d'organisation du Congrès Mondial de Sociologie de l'ISA de 2014 au Japon.

Il s'agit du premier Congrès Mondial de Sociologie organisé en Asie de l'Est. Le Japon et l'Asie de l'Est ont dû, de longue date, affronter les problèmes sociologiques engendrés par une rapide croissance économique. Nous nous trouvons confrontés à de nombreux problèmes – que ce soit à l'échelle locale ou mondiale – auxquels les générations futures seront également confrontées.

Le Comité local d'organisation est constitué de 19 membres répartis sur l'ensemble du territoire japonais. Depuis mai 2008, nous avons tenu périodiquement plus d'une trentaine de réunions. Nous sommes fiers de former une véritable équipe nationale.

La Société japonaise de Sociologie entretient d'étroites relations avec les associations régionales et celles des différentes branches de la sociologie. En 2007, 29 associations ont mis sur pied le Consortium japonais pour la Société de Sociologie. Pour ce congrès, ils ont publié leurs Messages au Monde où sont exposés leur histoire, leurs principaux travaux et les défis qu'ils se proposent de relever. Il s'agit là d'un aperçu sur la sociologie japonaise dans son ensemble.

D'aucuns seront sans doute inquiets des répercussions de la catastrophe nucléaire de Fukushima. En tant que sociologue de l'environnement et fervent détracteur de la politique énergétique nucléaire, je peux vous assurer que Yokohama est désormais entièrement sûre.

Le 11 mars 2011, le Japon a dû faire face à une triple catastrophe : un tremblement de terre, un tsunami et l'accident nucléaire de Fukushima. Depuis, un réseau d'échange, auquel de nombreux collègues participent, a été créé pour la recherche et l'information sur ces catastrophes qui ont généré un travail considérable et suscité de nouveaux défis à relever. Plusieurs groupes de recherche ont réalisé des enquêtes dans pratiquement toutes les régions touchées.

Le complexe Pacifico Yokohama, où a lieu notre Congrès, donne sur le Yokohama Bay Bridge, un magnifique pont devenu un emblème de la région. Suivant la description éloquente du sociologue allemand Georg Simmel, les ponts sont l'expression visuelle de notre volonté de relier. Je crois que notre travail de sociologue permet de jeter des ponts entre l'Orient et l'Occident, entre le Sud et le Nord, entre hommes et femmes, entre le passé et l'avenir, entre les différentes générations, entre la nature et la société, et établit un lien entre toutes sortes de clivages sociologiques, pour un monde plus égalitaire. Le Congrès de Yokohama va contribuer à jeter des ponts pour faire d'un monde divisé un monde intégré.

Pacifico Yokohama se trouve en bord de mer, dans un quartier de la ville appelé Minato Mira 21 ou « port du futur ». Un ancien chantier naval y a été réhabilité et transformé pour être intégré au nouveau centre-ville. Les formes originales du Pacifico Yokohama, qui évoquent les images d'une vague, d'un bateau, d'une voile, sont à l'image du superbe bord de mer environnant. Vous aurez l'occasion de découvrir que Yokohama est le cadre idéal pour observer et comprendre la nouvelle réalité du Japon d'aujourd'hui et pour réfléchir à un avenir écologiquement viable.

Avec son projet de « ville intelligente » (Yokohama Smart City Project), Yokohama est également l'une des premières « éco-villes » – une ville qui promeut les énergies renouvelables, encourage la gestion de l'énergie à l'échelle locale et les systèmes de transport de future génération. Aujourd'hui à Yokohama, vous trouverez une grande diversité culturelle, artistique et culinaire, tout un ensemble dynamique de paysages urbains et des cadres de vie en pleine évolution. Yokohama ne manquera pas d'influer sur vos propres observations et expériences sociologiques. Bon congrès et bon séjour à Yokohama! Le Congrès de Yokohama est votre Congrès.

Koichi Hasegawa

Président du Comité Local d'Organisation au Japon

Bienvenida por parte de ISA Vicepresidente para el programa del Congreso

Es para mí un gran placer y un honor darles la bienvenida a Yokohama, en nombre del Comité Local Organizador del Congreso Mundial de Sociología de la AIS de 2014 en Japón.

Es la primera vez que se celebra un congreso mundial de sociología en Asia del Este. Japón y Asia del Este llevan mucho tiempo tratando de resolver los problemas sociológicos que conlleva su rápido crecimiento económico. Nos enfrentamos a numerosos problemas, sean a nivel local o global, que las futuras generaciones también deberán encarar.

El Comité Organizador Local está formado por 19 miembros provenientes de todo el territorio japonés. Desde mayo del 2008, hemos tenido periódicamente más de 30 reuniones. Estamos orgullosos de formar un equipo verdaderamente nacional.

La Sociedad Sociológica Japonesa mantiene estrechas relaciones con las asociaciones regionales y las asociaciones de las diferentes ramas de la sociología. En 2007, 29 asociaciones crearon el Consorcio Japonés para la Sociedad Sociológica. Para este congreso, han publicado unos Mensajes para el Mundo, en los cuales exponen su historia, sus principales contribuciones y mayores retos. En esta publicación se resume, en grandes líneas, la sociología japonesa en su conjunto.

Puede que algunos estén preocupados por las consecuencias del desastre nuclear de Fukushima. Como sociólogo ambiental y viejo opositor a las políticas en materia de energía nuclear, les garantizo que Yokohama es ahora completamente segura.

El 11 de marzo de 2011, Japón se enfrentó al grave desafío de una triple catástrofe: un terremoto, un tsunami y el accidente nuclear de Fukushima. Se creó entonces una red, en la que participan muchos sociólogos, de investigación e intercambio de información sobre las catástrofes que han generado tanto trabajo por hacer así como nuevos desafíos a los que hacer frente. Varios grupos de investigación han realizado encuestas en prácticamente todas las regiones afectadas.

Desde Pacífico Yokohama –el lugar de nuestro congreso– se puede contemplar el llamado Yokohama Bay Bridge, un hermoso puente que es un punto de referencia de la región. Tal como lo expresó con agudeza el sociólogo alemán Georg Simmel, los puentes son la expresión visual de nuestro deseo por conectar. Creo que nuestro trabajo sociológico está construyendo puentes entre Oriente y Occidente, Sur y Norte, mujeres y hombres, pasado y futuro, entre generaciones, entre naturaleza y sociedad, y salvando todo tipo de brechas sociológicas para un mundo más igualitario. El Congreso de Yokohama tenderá puentes para convertir un mundo dividido en un mundo integrado.

Pacífico Yokohama está ubicado en una zona costera de la ciudad, llamada Minato Mirai 21 o “puerto del futuro”. Un antiguo astillero fue remodelado para formar parte de un nuevo centro de la ciudad. Las formas únicas del Pacífico Yokohama reflejan el maravilloso entorno marítimo, llevando a la mente imágenes marinas: una ola, un barco, una vela. Descubrirán que Yokohama es el lugar ideal para observar y entender la nueva realidad del Japón actual y para reflexionar sobre un futuro sostenible.

Con su proyecto de “ciudad inteligente” (Yokohama Smart City Project), Yokohama es una de las primeras “eco-ciudades”, una ciudad que ha apostado por las energías renovables y fomentado la gestión energética a nivel local y unos sistemas de transportes de próxima generación. Hoy en día en Yokohama, se encuentran una oferta cultural, artística y culinaria diversificada, una variedad cambiante de paisajes urbanos, así como unas comunidades en plena evolución. Por su propia experiencia y sus observaciones sociológicas, Yokohama marcará la diferencia. Que disfruten del congreso y de su estancia aquí. El Congreso de Yokohama es de ustedes.
