LAST MINUTE NEWS

On November 21, 2008, the Executive Secretary of the RC01, prof. dr. Ljubica Jelušič, was appointed as Minister of Defence of the Republic of Slovenia. In order to continue the activities of Executive Secretary, Dr. Uroš Svete from Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia, RC01 member, agreed to serve as the Executive Secretary till next elections. His email address is uros.svete@fdv.uni-lj.si. Those who attended the World ISA Congress in Durban and Seoul Interim Meeting of the RC01, know him as good presenter and devoted scientist in military sociology topics.

PRESIDENT’S LETTER NO. 20

This Newsletter is in large part devoted to a reflection on the unfolding and the results of the interim meeting held by our Committee this year in Seoul, South Korea, from 14 to 17 July.

The Executive Secretary’s report gives an account of the most significant statistical data, while the report on the business meeting informs you on the future developments of the Seoul experience, first and foremost the publication of the proceedings. Beyond the foregoing data – data already significant in themselves – I would like to highlight some aspects of the recent Korean experience of particular significance.

First of all, I want to underscore the fact that, unlike for previous interim meetings, the invitation to participate was also extended to persons with a keen interest in our discipline who do not belong to our Committee and that their response was positive, since 40 paper givers were scholars who are not members of the RC. This led on the one hand to a broadening of scientific perspectives, approaches, and points of view, and on the other also to some (very few) interventions that were not completely consistent with the theme of the conference. Nevertheless, the positive aspects seem to have far exceeded the dispersive ones.

A second significant aspect regards the choice of Seoul as venue for the conference. As I said in my opening address at the proceedings of the conference (reported below), this choice fits in with the character of our Committee, which aims to attract and link scholars from all parts of the world. Therefore it was considered appropriate to hold the meeting in a geographic region of a steadily growing significance. The fears on the eve of the conference, in regard to low attendance due to the marginality of the region with respect to the countries with the largest delegations of scholars in our discipline, were proved wrong by the facts (see the statistical data reported in this Newsletter): the Seoul conference saw the highest attendance of all RC01’s interim meetings!

But the choice of Seoul proved to be a good one also because of two other aspects of the event: organisation and hospitality. Under the leadership of Prof. Doo Seung Hong, the Local Organising Committee did an outstanding job, creating the atmosphere of a smoothly running organisation and offering us all a friendly, refined welcome. It won’t be easy for my successor to organise the 2012 interim meeting at a similar level!

A third aspect: a variety of the themes dealt with and the level of the presentations. Just a glance at the conference's programme (reported in the body of this Newsletter) shows the striking variety of themes. Further comment would be superfluous. Similarly, it is not possible to be judging about the content of the presented papers, because they are currently being examined by the chairpersons for their possible inclusion in the conference proceedings. However, allow me to express my personal opinion: having been present at many sessions throughout the conference, my impression is that I have listened to many presentations of remarkable scientific insight, offering significant new contributions.

Last but not least, the generous support of the Korean organisations, that financed the conference, enabled us for the first time, to offer grants to partially cover the travel expenses of young (and not so young) colleagues who would otherwise have been unable to attend. This allowed many researchers, selected for the quality of their presentations, to participate in the conference. Such promotion of merit, offered to the scholars coming from the less economically well off countries, should be seen as a standard future practice not only for our RC but more generally, for the ISA as
As announced in my opening address and as decided in the business meeting, the proceedings will be published as Studies in Honour of Charles Moskos. All chairpersons have been urged to ask the paper givers of their sessions if they would like their papers to be included in the proceedings. In the second step, they will evaluate the scientific content and the pertinence of each paper and send me the papers, along with their observations and proposals. This step will be followed by the editing work. Prof. Manas Chatterij, editor of the series Conflict Management, Peace, Economics and Development, has offered to publish the volume (or volumes) with the Emerald Group publishing house, which has already published the selection of the papers presented at the Durban 2006 conference.

As this lovely summer is coming to an end, let me conclude this letter by wishing you all a happy and serene return to your usual commitments and work activities.

Cette lettre est avant tout dédiée à une réflexion sur le déroulement et les résultats de la rencontre interim, tenue par notre Comité du 14 au 17 Juillet 2008 à Séoul en Coré du Sud.

Le rapport du Secrétaire exécutif porte sur les données statistiques les plus significatives. Par ailleurs, le rapport sur la rencontre d’affaires apporte des informations sur les développements futurs de l’expérience obtenue à Séoul, surtout la publication des Actes de conférence. Les informations mentionnées sont importantes, mais je me propose de souligner aussi un certain nombre d’autres aspects significatifs de notre expérience coréenne.

Premièrement, je voudrais mettre en évidence le fait, que par opposition aux précédentes rencontres interim, l’appel à communications a été adressé aussi à des personnes, susceptibles d’être intéressées à notre discipline, non-membres de notre Comité. Leur réponse a été positive, car 40 intervenants étaient des spécialistes ne venant pas de notre Comité. Il en résultait une ouverture des perspectives, des approches et des points de vue scientifiques de l’un côté, mais aussi quelques interventions – d’ailleurs, très peu nombreuses – qui s’éloignaient quelque peu du thème de la conférence. Néanmoins, les effets dispersifs semblent avoir été dominés par les aspects positifs.

Le second aspect significatif concerne le choix de Séoul comme lieu de la conférence. Comme je l’ai précisé dans mon allocution d’ouverture à la conférence (pour cette allocution voir ci-dessous), ce choix s’inscrit parfaitement dans l’esprit de notre Comité, car celui-ci vise à intégrer et relier les spécialistes venant de toutes les parties du monde. C’est dans ce but que nous avons jugé convenable d’organiser cette rencontre dans une région géographique, marquée par une importance croissante. À la veille de la conférence on sentait la peur que la participation ne soit réduite à cause de la marginalité de la région vis-à-vis des pays avec les délégations ayant les experts les plus nombreux dans notre discipline. Pourtant cette peur s’est révélée infondée (voir les données statistiques rapportées dans cette lettre d’information): la conférence de Séoul a connu la plus grande participation de toutes les RC01 rencontres interim.

Mais ce choix s’est avéré très judicieux aussi pour deux autres raisons: l’organisation et l’hospitalité. Le Comité d’organisation local, sous la houlette de prof. Doo Seung Hong, a fait un travail extraordinaire. Il nous a réservé un accueil chaleureux dans une atmosphère amicale et raffinée tout en assurant une organisation impeccable de la conférence. Il a en effet placé la barre très haut en termes d’organisation et la tâche de mon successeur, qui organise la rencontre interim en 2012, ne sera pas facile.

Le troisième aspect: la variété des thèmes et la qualité des interventions. Quant à la variété des thèmes, elle était remarquable. Il suffit de jeter un coup d’œil sur le programme de la conférence pour s’en rendre compte. Tout autre commentaire serait superflu. De même, il est impossible de porter des jugements sur le contenu des interventions présentées, car elles sont actuellement examinées par les présidents de chaque session en vue de publication dans les actes de la conférence. Mais permettez-moi d’exprimer mon opinion personnelle: ayant participé à de nombreuses sessions pendant toute la conférence, j’ai entendu beaucoup d’interventions caractérisées par des approches scientifiques remarquables, apportant ainsi de nouvelles contributions significatives.

Dernier élément, mais non des moindres, le soutien généreux des organisations coréennes qui ont financé la conférence, nous a permis pour la première fois d’offrir les bourses afin de couvrir une partie des frais de voyage de nos jeunes (et moins jeunes) collègues, choisis pour la qualité de leurs interventions, qui n’auraient pas pu participer à cette conférence sans cette aide financière.

Cette promotion du mérite, offerte aux experts venant des pays moins riches, devrait être considérée comme une future norme non seulement dans notre RC mais aussi plus généralement, au niveau de l’ISA.

Comme j’ai annoncé dans mon allocution d’ouverture et suite à la décision prise à la réunion d’affaires, les actes seront publiés sous le titre Studies in Honour of Charles Moskos. Tous les présidents de sessions étaient priés de demander aux intervenants dans leurs sessions s’ils souhaitent la publication de leur article dans les actes de la conférence. Dans la deuxième phase, ils vont évaluer le contenu scientifique et la pertinence de chaque article. Ensuite, ils m’environt les articles pour la publication dans les actes, ainsi que leurs observations et leurs suggestions. Cette phase sera suivie par le travail éditorial. Prof. Manas Chatterij, éditeur de la collection Conflict Management, Peace, Economics and Development a offert la publication du volume (ou des volumes) chez Emerald Group publishing house, qui avait publié aussi la sélection des articles, présentés à la conférence de Durban en 2006.
L’été touchant à sa fin, je voudrais conclure cette lettre en vous souhaitant un retour heureux et serein à vos obligations et à vos activités de travail.

CARTA DEL SEÑOR PRESIDENTE N. 20

Este informe está difusamente dedicado a unas reflexiones sobre el desarrollo y el éxito del ínterin-meeting, que nuestro Comité ha organizado en Séul, Corea, en julio último, y más concretamente del 14 al 17.

La relación del Secretario Ejecutivo les dará a ustedes cuentas de los datos estadísticos más relevantes, mientras que un comentario detallado de la asamblea les proporcionará noticias acerca de lo que la experiencia de Séul pondrá a efecto; en primer lugar, la publicación de las actas.

Además de dichos datos – ya de por sí muy significativos –, deseo poner de manifiesto algunos conceptos de especial importancia para nuestra recién terminada experiencia coreana.

Quiero ante todo subrayar que, a diferencia de los ínterin-meeting anteriores, la invitación ha sido extendida a todos los aficionados a nuestra materia que, en realidad, no pertenecen a nuestro Comité, y también que su adhesión resultó muy buena, puesto que en efecto unos 40 relatores no eran ni miembros del RC. Lo cual, en resumidas cuentas, ha dado ocasión para ampliar perspectivas científicas con nuevas aproximaciones y distintos puntos de vista aunque, por otro lado, puede ser que nos hayan enseñado algunas (la verdad, muy pocas) relaciones no tan concernientes que digamos al tema de nuestro convenio. Pero en fin, a lo que parece, los aspectos favorables han superado con largueza los conceptos más vagos.

Otro aspecto muy significativo es lo de la elección de Sóul, en cuanto sede del convenio. Como lo dije en el discurso inaugural de nuestra conferencia (que encontrarán ustedes más adelante), dicha elección refleja la particularidad de nuestro Comité, cuyo objeto es lo de reunir y poner en contacto a los estudiosos del mundo entero aficionados a nuestra materia. Con tal motivo, nos pareció apropiado realizar la conferencia en una región geográfica cada vez más excelente, tal cual como Extremo Oriente. El desasosiego que sentimos a última hora, dándole vueltas a lo de la escasa participación al convenio por ser harto marginal aquella región con respecto a los países representados por una gran cantidad de estudiosos de nuestra materia, fue borrado al punto por los acontecimientos (véase los datos estadísticos contenidos en el presente informe). Pues bien, el convenio de Sóul obtuvo la más amplia participación, superior, sin lugar a dudas, a todos los ínterin-meeting anteriores, organizados por el RCO1. Además, acertamos en elegir Sóul incluso bajo otros conceptos, es decir de la organización y de la hospitalidad. Bajo la dirección del profesor Doo Seung Hong, el Comité Local Organizador desarrolló un excelente trabajo, poniendo a punto un dispositivo organizador perfecto y ofrecéndonos a todos una hospitalidad amigable y superfina. ¡No será nada fácil para mi sucesor organizar en el año 2012 otro ínterin-meeting de tan alto nivel!

El tercer aspecto concierne la variedad de los temas que se trataron y el nivel de su presentación. La variedad de los temas salta a los ojos; basta con echar un vistazo al plan efectivo de la conferencia (que trae el cuerpo del informe), para concluir que cada comentario es adorno superfluo. Sin embargo, aún no podemos opinar en los temas de las relaciones presentadas, puesto que todos los presidentes de sesión están a punto de analizarlas más detenidamente con objeto de incorporarlas, a ser posible, en las actas de la conferencia. Quiero aprovechar esta nota para expresar mi opinión, después de asistir a muchas sesiones a lo largo de toda la conferencia. Pues bien, a mi entender, hemos logrado escuchar muchas relaciones de aporte científico de notable trascendencia, incluso elaborando rasgos harto innovadores.

Y, sobre todo, no puede no llamarnos la atención el generoso soporte de los entes coreanos que financiaron el convenio, lo cual permitió, por primera vez, becar como para satisfacer parcialmente los gastos de viaje bien a nuestros compañeros más jóvenes, bien a los mayores que, de lo contrario, no hubieran dispuesto de mucho dinero para participar. Por lo tanto, unos cuantos investigadores, elegidos sobre la base de la relevancia de su propuesta de relación, consiguieron participar en el convenio. Pues eso de reconocerle el mérito aun a los menos acomodados, tendría que convertirse, de hoy en adelante, en práctica consagrada, no sólo para nuestro RC, sino también para toda la ISA.

Por lo que a las actas de la conferencia se refiere, como ya les indiqué en mi discurso inaugural y de acuerdo con lo decidido por la asamblea, éstas aparecerán como Studies in Honour of Charles C. Moskos. Por supuesto, les insté a todos los presidentes de sesión que consultasen primero a los relatores de su propia sesión, para que ellos dieran a conocer su intención de incluir o no en las actas su propio ensayo. La segunda etapa de su tarea tratará de evaluar, en primer lugar, el contenido científico y el acierto de cada relación, y luego tendrán que enviármelas a mí, junto con sus notas y propuestas. A continuación, seguirá el trabajo de editaje. El profesor Manas Chatterj, en calidad de coordinador de la serie Conflict Management, Peace, Economics and Development, nos propuso publicar el volumen, o bien los volúmenes, por la Editorial Emerald Group; a él se debe ya la impresión de una recopilación de relaciones presentadas durante el convenio de Durban en el año 2006.

En fin, quisiera cerrar esta carta deseándoles a todos, al término de este verano tan bonito, que reanuden feliz y serenamente sus tareas de siempre y sus actividades laborales.

Report of Recent Activities: the interim conference of the RC01 in Seoul, Korea, 14 – 17 July 2008

1. OPENING SPEECH BY THE RC01 PRESIDENT dr. Giuseppe Caforio

Ladies and gentlemen,
The conference that I have the honour of opening today begins with a remembrance of Prof. Charles Moskos, a member of our Committee who recently passed away, to whom we have dedicated the conference itself.
Prof. Moskos was the most eminent figure in our field of studies in the last few decades and his stature and his work are too well known to everyone for me to go on at length here to provide a picture that would in any case be incomplete.
The Research Committee “Armed Forces and Conflict Resolution” thus pays tribute to Prof. Charles Moskos by dedicating this important study conference to him and through its plan to publish the proceedings of the conference as studies in honour of Charles Moskos.
Now then, let’s get back to the living.
The choice of Seoul as venue for our meeting is important and significant. It fits in with the character of our Committee, which aims to take in and link scholars from all parts of the world. For this purpose it was considered appropriate to hold the meeting in a geographic region of steadily growing significance in which we had not yet held any of our meetings.
Secondly, this choice allows us to come into contact with different military and social realities from the already much-studied European and North American contexts. Participation in the Seoul meeting will therefore be an enrichment for all of us.
Indeed, we have come to a country with an ancient history and civilisation, characterised by a profound religious culture and spirituality, starting from the period named after the Three Kingdoms (from the first to the seventh centuries A.D.), and then through the long period of the Joseon dynasty (from 1392 to 1910), in an active relationship of cultural exchange with neighbouring China for a long historical period, and today also with the Western world.
A culture that manifested itself in many different sectors, from the splendid architecture of thousand-year-old temples and the palaces of the Joseon period, to all the works of figurative art that adorn them, to the literature, to the traditional folk dances, to the great musical tradition, ever since the times of the Three Kingdoms.
Culture that is so alive also in the popular tradition as to give rise to proverbs like: “Teaching your child a single book is better than leaving him a fortune.”
We have come to a country that has succeeded in overcoming the hardships and the ruins of a disastrous civil war midway through the last century, a war that then unfortunately became internationalized owing to the bloc politics of the historic period, a country that still bears the deep wound of a split into two different states. And we shall go see the material sign of this wound, with a planned visit to the Demilitarized Zone. A country that attempts today to overcome this division through dialogue, with various political tools, such as the so-called Sunshine Policy, according to an approach that appears very close to the conflict resolution processes that a sector of our Committee actively studies (and will also debate in this conference).
We have come from various parts of the world (32 countries are represented here and this reflects that globalization that we put in the title of the conference), scholars have come from various disciplines of the social sciences, for that interdisciplinarity that we now all consider necessary for study of the armed forces and of conflict resolution.
Armed forces and conflict resolution are in fact two study themes that supplement each other: if on one hand the prevalent mission of national armed forces is today that of PSOs, on the other it is equally true that the political action for the resolution of local conflicts more and more often requires an international police action – a constabulary function, Morris Janowitz would have said – aimed at putting a stop to armed clashes and getting the parties into a dialogue.

We are about to discuss and debate these issues in 17 work sessions with a cross-national interdisciplinary approach, as I mentioned, because we hope and believe that a comparison made from multiple vantage points offers us the chance of greater insight into the study topics.

The higher number of participants in the conference (around 90) forced us to schedule parallel work sessions, with the exception of some plenary sessions like this one. This makes it necessary to choose according to the schedule that has been distributed and we offer our apologies for this, but at the same time we are proud to be able to register such broad participation.

And before opening the proceedings and wishing everyone well in their work let me thank the country that is hosting us, the university that is welcoming us, and the local organising committee, chaired by Prof. Hong, who has done an outstanding job on the challenging preparation and organization work.

This said, I now have the honour of declaring the opening of the International Conference on “Armed Forces and Conflict Resolution in a Globalized World,” dedicated to Prof. Charles Moskos and jointly organized by Research Committee 01 of the International Sociological Association and by the Korea Sociological Association and the Seoul National University and the Korea Military Academy.

3. SOME STATISTICS ABOUT THE SEOUL INTERIM CONFERENCE

There were 137 participants from 30 countries from all continents, among them 68 came from all over the world, 54 were Korean participants and 15 guests. Majority of them have presented papers, some contributed even two papers. There were 88 papers presented, among them 40 papers belonged to the authors that are not RC 01 members. The conference had strong qualitative support from the 15 Korean experts from different universities, that contributed to the conference and helped the foreign participants to understand better the history and the current defence efforts of South Korea. Special thank goes to the Korean Military Academy that hosted one of the sessions on Korean military in transition.

Global participation was made possible by enormous generosity of local organisers

The Korean organisers, Seoul National University, Korean Military Academy and especially Korean Sociological Association, proved to be excellent operational team, and also very helpful in co-financing the participation of some colleagues from less developed countries, as also younger scholars. They offered them the accommodation in Hoam Faculty House for free, and some received also travel grants. The program Committee decided to give the travel grants to 12 participants, but unfortunately some of them resigned from participation in the last days before the conference, and two of them did not succeed to arrive to Seoul (Rachid El Houdaigui, Marek Garztecki).

THANKS TO THE LOCAL ORGANISING COMMITTEE FROM KOREAN SOCIOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION AND ITS EFFORTS TO FIND THE SPONSORS, THE FOLLOWING PARTICIPANTS OF THE CONFERENCE WERE AGREED TO RECEIVE THE PARTIAL REIMBURSEMENT OF THEIR TRAVEL COSTS:

As of mid-2008, RC 01 had 40 female members.

As of mid-2008, the geographical distribution of members is as follows:
- Africa: 7 countries (Angola, Burkina Faso, Namibia, Nigeria, South Africa, Morocco, Cameroon)
- Asia: 6 countries (India, Indonesia, Japan, Pakistan, South Korea, Kazakhstan)
- Australia
- Eurasia: 2 countries (Russian Federation, Turkey)
- Europe: 20 countries (Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czech Republic, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Macedonia, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland)
- Middle East: 1 country (Israel)
- North America: 2 countries (Canada, the United States of America)
- Latin America: 5 countries (Argentina, Chile, Mexico, Peru, the Virgin Islands, Philippines)
5.2. Financial Situation in November 2008

RC 01 has 1700,00 EUR at its account in November 2008.

The financial situation improved after the Local organising Committee from Seoul National University donation of 1000,00 USD. RC01 is very grateful for this important financial support. In addition, the Local Organising Committee, chaired by Doo-Seung Hong, financially supported the conference attendance of some colleagues from less developed countries by offering them travel grants and free accommodation. Thanks to this valuable support, the conference succeeded in bringing together participants from Europe, Asia, Eurasia, Latin America, Africa, North America.

1. THE 9TH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE OF MILITARY PEDAGOGY (IAMP08)
19th to 22nd MAY 2008
Organised by The National Defence University Helsinki, Finland

The IAMP08 Conference gathered together serious amount of international military pedagogy researchers and specialists. The main theme of the IAMP08 Conference is the Changing Identity of a Soldier. In the core of this framework are the various and unknown operational environments the future soldiers will face. The mission of the military pedagogy is to create educational systems that meet the future challenges.

24 foreign scholars participated in the conference. Among them:
- Dr., COL (ret.) Reuven Gal, Israel, "Service Without Guns – Towards New Ways of National Service"
- General (ret.), President of RC01 of the ISA, Italy, Giuseppe Caforio “The Changing Nature of Security Threats in the Perception of Future Civil and Military elites”

Three Research Workshops were also organized:
- Pedagogical Research Laboratory (LtCol, PhD Vesa Niissinen)
- Future Military Education (LtCol, PhD Juha Mäkinen)
- Human Security and Military Ethics (Prof Jarmo Toiskall)

2. Sociology and Interdisciplinarity, Central and Spouth East European Perspectives, Zadar, Croatia, May 8-10, 2008

During the conference 36 papers were presented from 8 countries, reflecting a broad range of European countries and even beyond: Six sessions were held and some plenary sessions with keynote speeches. Giuseppe Caforio presented the theme Social sciences and the military: An example of an interdisciplinary and cross-national approach.
Dear Chairperson of an ISA Research Committee/Working Group/Thematic Group, the 39th World Congress of the International Institute of Sociology will take place, as announced, at Yerevan State University, Yerevan, Armenia, June 11-14, 2009. The theme of the Congress is “Sociology at the Crossroads”.

The five previous World Congresses of the IIS have highlighted dilemmas of human existence and societal institutions in the contemporary world. They have examined problems of social existence amidst processes of globalization, cooperation and violent conflict. They have been conducted in the spirit which guided the formation of the IIS, namely that of an engagement and encounter between a variety of theoretical positions among members of a truly international community of scholars.

The 39th World Congress will reaffirm that spirit. It will have three broad foci, namely questions concerning the way sociology can arrive at a reformulated understanding of dilemmas of humanity in the contemporary era, including the nature of war and violence, of political order and states and state-like entities, of religious and cultural encounters, of processes of collective memories, traumas and reconciliations, and of shifting conceptions of law, legal regulation, human rights and international order.

The Congress will also highlight cutting-edge theoretical advances in sociology and neighbouring disciplines as well as teaching and curricular developments of sociology and social science in general in universities in the future.

The structure of the Congress is straightforward. The Congress will open on Thursday afternoon, June 11, with two plenary sessions. Each morning of the three following days, June 12-14, there will be two plenary sessions. The afternoons will be devoted to sessions proposed and organized by participants themselves.
At the previous World Congresses of the IIS, President, Vice-Presidents and former Presidents of the ISA have been present and have contributed greatly to the intellectual profile of the Congresses. It has become a well-established and well-functioning practice that a large number of ISA Research Committees/Working Groups/Thematic Groups hold their meetings during the IIS World Congress.

We are writing to you in your capacity as chairperson of an ISA Research Committee/Working Group/Thematic Group. During the 38th World Congress 11 ISA RC meetings were held. It is a delight for the organizing committee of the 39th World Congress of the IIS to welcome your committee/group to hold one or several sessions at the Yerevan Congress. Active participation of the ISA Research Committees/Working Groups/Thematic Groups forms an important part of our common effort to promote truly international and high-quality research collaboration across the entire field of sociology and its neighboring disciplines. Needless to say, we realize that it might be difficult for you to submit a proposal to hold a session prior to the November 18 deadline. If it proves impossible to do so, we intend to do our very best to accommodate proposals from ISA committees/groups also after that date.

If you have any questions, please contact Sophie Sköld (iis2009@iisoc.org). For more information about the congress, please visit the congress website www.iisoc.org/iis2009. The site will be continuously updated.

The Congress is hosted by Yerevan State University (YSU) and organized by Lyudmila Harutyunyan, Dean of Sociology, YSU, and Björn Wittrock, Principal of SCAS and President of the IIS, together with Craig Calhoun, New York University (NYU), and President, Social Science Research Council (SSRC), New York; Yehuda Elkana, Central European University (CEU); Peter Hedström, Nuffield College, Oxford and Singapore Management University (SMU), Secretary-General, IIS, and President, European Academy of Sociology; Hans Joas, Max-Weber-Kolleg, University of Erfurt, University of Chicago, and Vice-President, International Sociological Association; and Shalini Randeria, University of Zürich and President, European Association of Social Anthropologists.

You are warmly welcome to Yerevan in 2009.

Upcoming Events Outside RC 01

1. 10th ERGOMAS conference in Stockholm, 2009, June 22-26
A global focus on Military and Society
In June 2009, the Swedish National Defence College will be hosting the next conference of the European Research Group on Military and Society (ERGOMAS). ERGOMAS is a public, non-profit, politically and ideologically independent professional organization of scientists. Its purposes are pursued through the activity of Working Groups (see below) and the Biennial conference. The conference functions as an occasion when all working groups meet, where new members can join and provides a unique opportunity for learning and networking within research on Military and Society. From this year, the Board of ERGOMAS have decided to make the association more “global” by welcoming members and conference participants from all countries. The core disciplines of ERGOMAS are sociology and political science but, over time, it has become more and more multidisciplinary, and now has members drawn from many other disciplines: for example psychology, anthropology, education, history, to mention some of them.
Conference themes
The programme for the conference will be based on a combination of keynote talks, and presentations by the working groups. Proposals for new working groups and research themes are also welcome and some room will be made for the presentation of these. The conference themes will encompass the whole range from everyday conditions in international operations to critical events for civil and military personnel. Central themes during the conference are:
1. 21st century military operations, focusing on issues arising from multinational links, jointery, inter-agency relationships and questions of linking military and reconstruction/nation building missions.
2. The effects of operations on deployed personnel (not just military but civilians, contractors etc) as well as families, and wider publics; and impact of families and publics and deployed experiences on operations: so there are two-way relationships to be investigated here.
3. Privatization of security and the use of private security companies in delivering support for military missions: legal, regulatory, civil-military and defence economics issues, including the question of how far commercialization and outsourcing of its core functions can go without undermining military effectiveness.
Organisation
The conference will take place at the Swedish National Defence College (Försvarshögskolan, FHS). Photographs showing the building and some of the facilities can be seen here. The conference is an opportunity to listen to and join some of the present working groups but also to put forward new ideas and directions.
The present working groups
The present working groups and their coordinators are the following:

• "Morale, Cohesion and Leadership",
(coordinator Paul Bartone, bartonep@ndu.edu; coordinator, gerry.larsson@fhs.se)
• "Democratic Control of the Armed Forces",
(coordinator Hans Born, h.born@dcaf.ch)
• "Public Opinion, Mass Media and the Military",
In the twenty years that have passed since the fall of the Soviet Union and the end of a bipolar geopolitical order, the world has experienced no fewer than 116 violent conflicts. Encompassing regional and inter-communal struggles, civil wars, insurrections and counterinsurgencies, ethnic cleansings, politicides, and so-called wars on terror, these “new wars” – as Mary Kaldor has described them—have not only been notable for their brutality, but also for the fact that they have largely extinguished any lingering distinctions between civilians and combatants, the front and the rear. (As Kaldor indicates, among the most striking feature of these ‘new wars’ is the fact that the average civilian/military casualty ratio now stands at 8:1, the inverse of what it was prior to WWI).

As military operations on urban terrain [or “MOUT campaigns”], sieges, and scorched earth tactics have reintroduced themselves with a new vigor in the repertoire of warfare, an entire reconstruction industry has emerged in their wake, bringing with it new forms of expertise in the assessment and management of the post conflict environment.

Indeed, because war has rapidly become a metropolitan phenomenon, one of the most prominent though overlooked consequences of the contemporary history of warfare may be the emergence of the “post-conflict environment” itself; that is, the appearance of a series of common social and physical attributes out of wartime conditions [and the responses to them], wherever armed conflicts occur. Despite the important political, geographic, and economic differences between them, in Kosovo, Falluja, Guatemala, and the Sudan, the logic of conflict generates something approaching a universal ecology of ruin. To date, however, this post-conflict environment has only been described in fragmentary form with too little exchange across discipline and issue areas. Distributed throughout the academic and policy literatures on postwar stabilization and reconstruction, transitional governance, humanitarian assistance, peace and nation building, informal networks and civil society, the characteristics of the post-conflict environment await systematic description in a single work.

The Post-Conflict Project:

The aim of the Post-Conflict Environment Project is to attempt such a description; first, in a workshop and then in a published monograph and linked web site aimed at a readership of academics and non-specialists alike. Recognizing the twin methodological challenges presented by the distinctiveness of individual conflicts on one hand, and of the disciplinary approaches developed to interpret them on the other, the organizers of the Post-Conflict Project see this range of political and methodological cases as an opportunity to delineate a ‘composite image’ of the postwar environment. In other words, we seek to analyze the most prevalent/salient characteristics of the post-conflict environment out of the cumulative descriptions and interpretations of differing

Submissions/Deadlines:

Individuals who wish to participate in the Post-Conflict Environment Project should submit an abstract of no more than 250 words, as well as a CV of no more than 2 pages to Kathy Langworthy, Administrator, P-CON Program -- Colgate University. Abstracts and CV’s should be combined in a single msword document, and sent as attachments to Ms. Langworthy at: klangworthy@mail.colgate.edu. The deadline for submissions is Friday, 31 October 2008.

3. BEIJING CONFERENCE: MANAGING THE SOCIAL IMPACTS OF CHANGE FROM A RISK PERSPECTIVE
15-17 April 2009

How are the risks associated with social change understood in China and in the UK? How do social scientists study them and policy-makers respond to them? This major international conference will focus on the contribution of social science research to understanding and managing a range of important social risks. There will be two streams led by leading international keynote speakers on the management of change and on the contribution of social science to the understanding of risk, and a further stream of papers on current risk issues in the two countries. Contributions to all these streams are welcomed.

4. IUS CANADA BIENNIAL CONFERENCE
Kingston, ON, Canada, IUS Canada 2008 Biennial Conference, November 7 - 9, 2008 The Royal Military College of Canada, Kingston, Ontario
The 2008 Biennial Conference hosted by IUS Canada will be held at the Royal Military College of Canada in Kingston, Ontario from the 7th to 9th November, 2008.

This call for papers invites the submission of abstracts for papers, panels or posters to the Programme Committee. As with previous conferences, submissions are invited addressing the broad range of social and behavioral sciences research dealing with the military establishment; relations with both government and society in achieving defence objectives; and, increasingly, the broader array of issues that surround the security sector and inter-relationships amongst the military, other government agencies, NGOs and host communities in achieving human security objectives. As such, IUS Canada wishes to expand the topics examined and the perspectives presented and specifically invites the widest possible range of scholarship on relevant topics.

Noting the evolution of thinking in other nations, the conference organizers are particularly interested in attracting a range of papers on issues related to culture and military operations. Change in the nature of military missions, globalization, inclusive and comprehensive approaches to problem solution, and other characteristics of the evolving security context all point to the multi-faceted importance of “culture” and the concept of cultural intelligence. In response, each academic discipline has developed notions and definitions of culture and cultural intelligence that inform work in this domain, but few opportunities have occurred in Canada to compare and debate the merits of these approaches, to examine how these approaches are either in conflict with one another or mutually supportive of one another, or to assess whether concepts developed in other nations do or do not fit the Canadian context. Thus, papers are specifically requested considering the impact of evolving notions and definitions of culture and cultural intelligence on military operations over the past decade, on current operations, and on future military operations.

Further, the work of emerging scholars is particularly encouraged and the Franklin Pinch Award will be given to the best student paper or poster presented at this year’s conference.

Requests for participation and panel, paper, and poster abstracts should be sent no later than 15 September, 2008 to:

Dr. Sarah A. Hill, Programme Committee Chair (sarah.hill@rmc.ca).

5. An international, Interdisciplinary Conference

Cardiff University, UK
Thursday 2*Friday 3 July 2009

What are the cultural implications of living under conditions of global, manufactured risk?

In the twentieth century, the possibility arose for the first time that a crisis of planetary proportions might result from human activities. By the early decades of the century, global economic and financial interdependence was such that a crisis unfolding in one location could radiate outwards to destabilize the entire socio-economic world-system. Through the twentieth century and into the twenty-first, the risk of pandemic upheaval has been heightened by an array of phenomena: the expansion and acceleration of media and telecommunications networks; the integration of financial markets and the instantaneous ramification of market fluctuations via programme trading; nuclear proliferation; international terrorism; rapid population growth; unsustainable consumption of natural resources; overload of electricity grids, leading to cascading power failures; pollution of the ecosphere and resulting climate change; computer viruses and cyber-warfare; genetic engineering; cloning; nanotechnology; artificial intelligence; bioweaponry; the emergence and rapid spread of new strains of infectious disease; and the development of antibiotic-resistant pathogens.

Scholars speak of systemic risk (Anthony Giddens), simultaneous crisis formation (David Harvey), a general disaster (Brian Massumi), worst imaginable accidents (Ulrich Beck), total risk of catastrophe (François Ewald), global or integral accidents (Paul Virilio), global catastrophic risks (Nick Bostrom and Milan irkovi), and modernist events * events which not only could not possibly have occurred before the twentieth century but the nature, scope, and implications of which no prior age could even have imagined (Hayden White).

Such occurrences hover indeterminably somewhere between the possible, the probable, and the inevitable. This conference will explore how writers, artists, filmmakers, dramatists, philosophers, and critical and cultural theorists have responded to the prospect and reality of global crisis. Moreover, it will ask how the methodologies of textual and cultural criticism might offer new insights into our age of global risk.

Please send 250-word abstracts for 20-minute papers to the organizer, Dr Paul Crosthwaite, at globalrisk@cardiff.ac.uk by Monday 22 December 2008. Proposals for three-person panels are also welcome; please send a brief description of the panel along with abstracts for the individual papers.

New Publications

This study is based on more than 1,800 questionnaires that have been returned by both male and female soldiers in the German Armed Forces in mid-2005. The findings of these data are now published in this report. The topics dealt with include the following aspects: job satisfaction, soldierly interactions, work-life balance, self-perceptions and other-perceptions, gender / sex role images and sexual harassment. The report sees progress in some areas and remaining and continuing problems in other areas. It concludes that gender training efforts are necessary and should be revived.

This book brings together contributions from scholars of various social science disciplines on three themes that appeared significant for the study of the phenomenon of conflict and conflict resolution. The first theme is centered on the new aspects of war in the twenty-first century where asymmetric warfare has changed many rules of the game, imposing a profound transformation on the military, not only tactical, but also structural, preparatory, mental and ideological. The second theme regards the delicate relations between the armed forces and societies. The ever-greater technicality of military operations and their lower comprehensibility to the broad public as a result, together with increased sensitivity in many countries in regard to the use of violence and death, have created social situations and problems that deserve to be investigated. The third theme, building and sustaining peace, operationalizes different types and levels of violence and conflict. It assesses ongoing efforts, for instance, governments trying to contain or diffuse conflict, businesses and national service schemes building peaceful civil spheres, and the efforts of organized groups to claim, shape, and extend the spheres of life that are free of conflict.

During the Second World War Knut Pipping, a young Finnish sociologist, served as NCO in a Finnish machine gun company. In 1942, during the war, he began an extensive sociological study of his own company: He gathered empirical material systematically during and after the war and after the war his work was published in Swedish. The Finnish Military Sociological Society wanted to have translated and published in English this very interesting work.

Dr. David R. Leffler wrote us the following letter that we report for what can be of interest of our readers:

Dear Dr. Caforio,

Col. Brian Rees and I thoroughly enjoyed attending the Armed Forces & Conflict Resolution in a Globalized World Conference in Seoul. Many salutes to you and the conference organizers who did such a wonderful job! You may recall that Col. Rees and I both gave presentations about how Invincible Defense Technology (IDT) is a scientifically-validated means for any country to prevent terrorism and war. In my opinion, as a scientist who has studied the peer-reviewed research on IDT, the brave people who are among the first to harness the immense power of the unified field through IDT will gain the upper hand over their competition.

For more information concerning my opinion, I request that you and your colleagues read my recent editorial: "The Race for ‘Inner Space’" and read the "Proceedings from 3 International Conferences" published in the 11 April 2008 issue of Invincible Defense Technology News. This newsletter is available at: http://davidleffler.com/enewsletter/20080411_IDT_News.html. You and your colleagues are welcome to subscribe to this newsletter. This is no fee for this online subscription.

Lastly, David R. Leffler invite RC01 members to view an online video by Dr. John Hagelin, The video is available at: http://www.invincibleddefense.org/videos/2007_04_11_hagelin.html

The Center for Security Studies is led by Prof. Andreas Wenger (http://www.css.ethz.ch). It studies the interaction between the causes and consequences of organized violence among groups, states, and/or societies, on the one hand, and institutions, political processes, and/or policies that can contribute to the prevention, management, stabilization, and mitigation of political violence, on the other. For this open position we are particularly interested in a PhD student who has a strong interest in working on European and transatlantic security issues.
