

Sociological Imagination

The Peer-Reviewed Journal of the Wisconsin Sociological Association

October 2019

Call for Papers

Sociological Imagination seeks submission for an upcoming special issue:

"The Changing Face of Poverty in Post-Recession America"

Scheduled for Fall 2020 publication, this issue welcomes article topics which include (but are not limited to):

- (1) the demographics of poverty, especially as it relates to its key correlates, such as race and educational attainment;
- (2) the spatial concentration of poverty in cities and neighborhoods;
- (3) the intergenerational transmission of poverty in families or communities;
- (4) the relationship of poverty to crime, victimization, incarceration, or other types of involvement with the criminal justice system; or
- (5) key sequelae of poverty, including increased risk of health problems and premature mortality.

Manuscripts having a sociological orientation, or focusing on changes taking place during or after the Great Recession, will be given particular priority. Please direct questions to Michael Friedson, Guest Editor at friedsom@uww.edu.

Deadline: April 10, 2020

www.wisconsinsociologicalassociation.org